GOVERNOR CAN'T MAKE FRIDAY LEGAL HOLIDAY

Friday, which has been designated by President Wilson as Liberty Day, will not be a legal holiday in this State, according to a statement issued today by Henry F. Long, secretary to Governor McCall. In the absence of the Governor, Secretary Long stated that the matter of a legal holiday was up to the Legislature and that the Governor had not authority to declare one.

Mr. Long stated that the Governor would probably issue another proclamation designating Friday as Liberty day in accordance with the President's proclamation and asking that every effort be made on that day to boost the sale of Liberty bonds. Offices, stores, banks and other business will not be compelled to close, he stated.

Dominion Boycott For Evasion of Listing Law

By International News Service.

Ottawa, Ont., April 23.—An order in council, effective today, calling for registration of all citizens of Canada over 16 years of age, makes the penalty for non-registration so rigid as to forbid food, lodging or employment to evaders.

The registration, it is planned, will be completed by the end of June. Evaders of the order may be fined, lose their vote, and it is unlawful for them to receive money for services, obtain board or lodging in any hotel or boarding house or purchase transportation tickets. Any employer who pays salary to a defaulter, knowing of the evasion of registration, will incur the same penalty as the offender.

CAMP BASEBALL FUND GIVEN BIG BOOST

The right sort of a wallop has been given the Boston AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund and the plan is speeding along like a clean batted ball from the ash of a champion.

More than $2,000 has been subscribed.

It has been planned to collect $3,000 which will build the grand stand needed alongside the parade ground at Camp Devens, but the generous response gives every evidence that at least twice that sum will be raised.

In this event the plan to build a clubhouse for the athletic field with showed baths, lockers and toilet equipment can be put through, and the boys at Camp Devens will be as well equipped for athletic events as any community in the country.

When you read the stories of what the men at the front are going through and realize that in a short time these Ayer men will have to go up against the same thing, you realize that to make their life in train-

INSPIRATION COPPER IS A MARKET FEATURE

New York, April 23.—The majority of issues showed a heavy tone on the stock market during the forenoon, with the steel industrials generally yielding from one-half to one point. There were a number of strong issues, however, with a good deal of attention attracted to the continued accumulation of Inspiration Copper, which moved up nearly two points to 53⅝. Distillers' Securities was also in brisk demand, moving up 1⅝ to 89⅝, a new high record for this movement. Studebaker was one of the weakest features, falling nearly two points to 58⅛. Steel common fell ⅝ to 94⅝, and Central Leather receded one point to 69¼. Marine preferred was also weak, dropping below 88.

AMERICAN PEER OF ANY FIGHTER, SAID FOCH

By International News Service.

Washington, April 23.—"The American soldier is the equal of any fighting man in Europe."

This statement, made to him by General Foch, generalissimo of the Allied forces, was given by Secretary of War Baker to the House Military Affairs Committee this afternoon, as summing up his impressions of what he saw of the American fighting men on the western front.

"He told me he was not a man given to compliments and I would learn that as I came to know more of him," Secretary Baker said, "but he added that no soldier in Europe was superior to the American dough boy."

The Secretary was filled with enthusiasm over what he saw of the troops on the front line.

"The achievements of the United States during the first year of the war will go down in history," he said.

For an hour and a half, behind locked doors, Secretary Baker added to the committee a graphic recital of what he saw in France, Belgium and Italy. He was expected to submit to the committee his estimates of the number of men that would be required in the American army during the next twelve months, but he did not do so.

Baker did indicate, however, that he would be opposed to raising the draft age to forty, as proposed by Representative Kahn, Shallenberger and other influential members of the committee. Young men were the ones needed to fight this war and bring final victory to the allied arms, he said.

"Things move more speedily over there than any one on this side can have any conception," he explained. "Every one seems to be taking two steps to the one he would take on this side. Every American soldier seems to be moving at a rate of sixty miles an hour."

The spirit of the troops was excel

NEW GAINS IN ALBERT SECTOR

British Strengthen Their Lines and Take Prisoners, London Announces

By International News Service.

London, April 23.—Further improvement of British positions on the northern end of the Picardy battle front and in Flanders was announced by the War Office today. In the sector of Albert the British strengthened their lines, capturing sixty prisoners.

"The British improved their position in the sector of Albert, capturing sixty prisoners," the official announcement said. "Local fighting took place in the sectors of Robecq and Festubert, which ended to the advantage of the British. Some German prisoners were captured.

"To the south of Ploegsteert, one of our raiding parties entered the German trenches penetrating as far as the enemy's supporting positions.

"West of Albert and along the greater part of the front from the southern part of the forest of Nieppe to the east of Ypres, the German artillery was very active.

GERMAN RAIDS ON FRENCH.

"Concentration of hostile troops was observed in the village of Villers-Bretonneux (the Bonne river sector) and in the neighborhood of Boscon. They were taken under our artillery fire."

German raids were carried out during the night between Lassigny and Noyon (on the southern flank of the German salient of Amiens), but they were without result, the French War Office announced today. Other German raids, all equally unsuccessful, were made northwest of Hartmannsweilerkopf in the Vosges Mountains. The Germans left some prisoners in the hands of the French.

"Between Lassigny and Noyon, northwest of Moulin and to the Verges, the Germans made raids, all of which were failures," the Paris communique said. "The French took some prisoners. Elsewhere the night passed quietly."

MRS. WHITEHOUSE IS BACK FROM EUROPE

An Atlantic Port, April 23.—Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, who was lost in Switzerland for the moment, on public information, returned to America on a French liner today. The vessel was one of seventeen steamers which arrived from various ports, and brought 183 cabin and 1,100 steerage passengers. Another return steamer brought seventy-four passengers, and a liner from a Spanish port carried 262.

Hobson's Santiago Feat Is Repeated by the British

The sinking of concrete ships in the harbors of Ostend and Zeebrugge, German submarine bases, presents a striking parallel to the feat of Commander Richmond Pearson Hobson, who in 1898 sank the Merrimac in the mouth of the harbor of Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War.

Hobson attempted to bottle up the Spanish fleet; the British effort is aimed at bottling up or at least making very difficult the operation of the only active branch of the Kaiser's navy in the Channel district.

Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, who recently reorganized that branch, is credited with instrumentality in planning the campaign against the submarine. If this latest method of fighting is successful, it should go far in answering the critics who have demanded offensive and aggressive action by the Navy.

HEAVY TOLL PAID BY GERMANS IN 'SHOCK' RAID

By International News Service.

Washington, April 23.—The American soldiers in the battle of Belcheprey covered themselves with glory, this is officially announced by General Pershing in his cablegram report now at the War Department. But the details of the report still are withheld by Secretary Baker.

However, it is known that in his report General Pershing placed the losses of the Americans engaged at "less than 200" while the losses of the German shock troops who attacked were more than 300. How many

SABOTAGE BILL IS SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, April 23.—The President today signed the sabotage bill, designed to further curb the activities of German agents, conscious and otherwise. The bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator Overman of North Carolina. It carries a penalty of thirty years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine or both for any one convicted of wilfully injuring or destroying war material or war premises or utilities used in connection with war material.

All provisions which might be interpreted as prohibiting peaceful strikes were removed before final action by the bill.

SUBMARINE BASES ATTACKED

The allies have begun a drive against the German sea power. The British Navy went into action today with a brilliant raid against German submarine bases on the Belgian coast. A battle between British men-of-war and the powerful German shore batteries was, in the opinion of naval experts, an inevitable part of the raiding operation.

The Admiralty makes official statement that five obsolete ships, laden with concrete, were run aground and blown up in a raid on Ostend and Zeebrugge, which are used by the Germans as destroyer and submarine bases.

Such a manoeuvre would be designed to bottle up the enemy vessels in their harbors after the fashion of Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson's celebrated feat of sinking the Merrimac in Santiago harbor. It was a British version of "Hobsonizing the Hun."

"BIG BILL" KELIHER IS TAKEN TO KANSAS

"Big Bill" Keliher, who has served six years of an eighteen year sentence for his part in looting the National City Bank of Cambridge, left Boston today for the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Keliher was in charge of Assistant United States Deputy Marshal James Tighe and an agent of the Department of Justice. For several years "Big Bill" has been the only Federal prisoner confined at Charlestown.

Washington is doubly interested in the news of the British raid, first, because it is taken as indicating a more aggressive naval policy by the allies; next, because American naval units may have taken part.

Reports from land operations today showed that the British in France have strengthened their positions on the Flanders and Picardy fronts in preparation for the expected double drive by the Huns for Amiens and the Channel coast. Both sides continue

WOUNDED AMERICANS TELL OF GREAT FIGHT AT SEICHEPREY

BAYONET AND PISTOL DUELS AMID RUINS AS TEUTONS FLEE BEFORE YANKEES

By BERT FORD,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, April 23.—The report sent to American headquarters by the commander in the field concerning the gallantry of an inferior force of Americans in driving off 1,200 German shock troops in the battle at Seicheprey on the sector northwest of Toul, closes as follows:

"Our troops were overwhelmed by the superiority of the enemy's numbers, but they fought to a finish."

Details of the battle show that the Germans shot liquid fire at the Americans at close range. Every German shock company included eight men armed with contrivances for shooting the vicious flames. They used them at a range of thirty feet. The reserve companies each had one liquid fire expert.

ATTACK BY PICKED MEN.

The latest reports show that the main German attacking force was made up of picked men, shock and grenade troops as "flankers."

It is officially admitted that the engagement was the severest in which American troops have yet taken part.

From wounded Americans now lying in an evacuation hospital it is learned that the Americans chased the Germans through ruined houses when they recaptured the village of Seicheprey, after an all-day battle. Americans and Germans engaged in bayonet and pistol duels in cellars and rooms of houses partly demolished by the enemy's artillery.

Americans finding themselves disarmed, fought their German opponents with their fists.

Among the wounded Germans at a hospital behind our lines is one who killed three Americans and wounded a fourth by pulling a wire exploding a string of grenades after calling for assistance from the very Americans whom he then victimized. The fact that he has not been killed after this diabolical trick testifies to the humane spirit of the American even in the heat of battle. Incidentally this German prisoner is still belligerent at the American hospital.

REASONABLE LOSSES.

Supplementary reports of the battle show that the American losses were no larger than they could reasonably be expected to be in an engagement on such a great scale, and that the enemy's losses were much greater and more disastrous than the Germans had anticipated.

Judging from the mode of attack, they had expected great results and few, if any, casualties.

Three hundred enemy dead have been counted in front of our first line trenches and in No Man's Land. Many wounded and dead were dragged in by the Germans.

At the point where the American sector adjoins the French lines, the French and American artillery dealt destruction to the enemy.

"The German assistance of Seicheprey was short lived, the Americans clearing that village of the foe in a spirited counter attack. They also won back every inch of ground just along the line, somewhere on the right bank of the Meuse.

RAID REPULSED.

In another American sector sixty Germans attempted a raid on our trenches, but were repulsed before they reached our entanglements. Two dead Germans were found in our wire. The Americans carried the fight into the enemy trenches.

From Americans who took part in the battle, some of them wounded, the International News Service correspondent gained vivid eye-witness stories of the fray.

"As the Germans tumbled in on us," said one wounded American, "our corporal killed five with his revolver, in quick succession. I never saw such a shot. I thought I was a pretty fair shot myself, but he had me trimmed. It thrilled me to see how cool he was. He told me to help him and forget my wounds. Well, I fired till the pistol clips gave out and then borrowed one from a wounded comrade and used up all his.

"Then I took a rifle, but my fingers were too stiff for pulling the hammer. I began to feel faint from the loss of blood. The corporal told us wounded guys we'd better report for dressing.

ALL NIPPED BY SHRAPNEL.

"'Red,' 'Shorty' and the big Swede of our outfit and myself had all been nipped by shrapnel. We crawled through a trench over some dead Germans. 'Shorty' had a hole in his back. 'Red' had a shoulder broken, and the other fellow had got it in the leg. Shells and machine gun bullets were whistling all about us. We crawled through a barrage that reminded me of a story I once read by Dante, called 'Inferno'—only there was so much racket in this one to be like the one in the book.

"I think we reached the dressing station three hours after we had been ordered to report there. We were too weak to pull the trigger of a pistol, but we howled them over as they came at us, first through the woods. 'Shorty' Kelly asked if there were friend or foe, 'cause we didn't want to fire into our own fellows.

"One Fritz yelled 'Americans,' but we saw the wide helmets and knew they were Germans, and pumped them full of steel. Say, our fellows were there the job. They fought chiefly at four points where the Germans tried to surround us.

"I'd sooner be back with the gang than in bed. Some fight! I'll be on the job in a few weeks."

Another private who manned a machine gun stationed the what is known as a "Chauchat" said:

"I tried to keep the road clear and make it safe for our cousins. I'm one of them now and here I am. Just let me get another whack at 'em for killing two fellers and I'll be quiet and I'm willing to be planted on the hill there with the rank of little wooden."

USE NEW DEVICES.

The dispatches need every diabolical invention of war and genius against which to contend. Besides the usual number of those new devices including an ingenious inoperative automatic rifle range pistol, the enemy also employs from a cylindrical chamber.

Every single individual bravery on the American side were numerous.

The following story was told to me today by Corporal Gerard George Hoolison of Ware, Mass. It is an incident of what our soldiers learned through a study of some of American traditions and world democracy. Corporal Hoolison was lying in a convalescence hospital when I found him and he was wounded in two places as the result of a bursting shrapnel, but his injuries are not serious.

PERSHING PRAISES U. S. SOLDIERS UNDER FIRE

of the American casualties are covered in the "Missing" list, as they are known. General Pershing, it is understood, has promised a more complete report which will cover this point later on.

It is understood here that the units engaged were regulars. They were supported by National Guard organizations and the entire outfit engaged is reported to have outfought and outlasted the German shock troops, picked men selected only after months of special training for raid work.

General Pershing is understood to have emphasized that the German attack was not in the nature of a raid, but undertaken to break a salient between the American and the French lines. Prisoners and dead captured in supporting columns of the Germans were laden with entrenching tools to dig themselves in.

The Americans were outnumbered three to one, but stuck to their position until help came, the wounded serving their guns as long as their strength lasted.

War Department officials were hopeful today that General Pershing will allow all details of this engagement to be forwarded from France. It was expected that if this were done we would stimulate interest in the doings of the boys "over there."

DEMAND DAILY REPORT.

The complete lack of official information regarding the battle, it was pointed out today, has had an unwarranted depressing effect on the country. Germany's claims of an "overwhelming victory" and its boasts of 152 prisoners taken, have not been contradicted by officials and has resulted in a renewal of the criticism that the country is being kept in the dark.

Army officers who know all that happened privately say that when all of the truth is known Americans at home will have additional cause to be proud of the way the army is carrying on.

Because of this there was renewed agitation today for an American official communique. That one will soon be issued is believed certain, although the entire matter remains in the hands of General Pershing.

SEC. BAKER OPPOSES RAISING DRAFT AGE

lent, Secretary Baker said. They are all "itching to get into the fighting." Their physical condition is unequalled by that of the men of any of the allied armies, he added.

The secretary's admiration for the achievements of the army engineers in charge of construction work was unbounded.

The storage facilities already erected behind the west front would make a room 50 feet wide and 100 miles long—almost as long as from here to New York," he said.

The artillery and aviation schools established for training American fighting men in these branches Baker had no hesitation in characterizing as "the finest in the world."

He revealed many military secrets of major importance, but requested that they be treated as absolutely confidential.

Few general observations were made by the secretary. He made no guess as to when the war would be over, but he predicted the result with the utmost confidence. He left no doubt in the minds of the committee that the responsibility of delivering the final punch rested with America.

City Appropriates $22,000 for 1918 War Gardens

The City Council has passed a $22,000 appropriation for the Committee on Public Safety.

Chairman Victor A. Health of the Executive Committee appeared before the Councilors and in detail satisfactorily explained all expenditures.

He stated that this year the "Back to farmers" will rent for a certain amount of rental, probably not to exceed $10 for each plot. This amount, he said, to be paid in installments. One instalment to be made at planting, one on July 1 and the last just prior to harvest.

The members after hearing considerable other data gave the committee a clean bill of health and passed the order.

It is understood that the college will be used as a school to train officers, and that 1300 men will enter shortly after graduation. Later this number will be doubled, it is said. It is believed that the candidates will be selected from New England draft Regiments now at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

$408,487,400, NEW YORK LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS

New York, April 23.—Total Liberty Loan subscriptions in the second district was $408,487,400 at noon today, the loan managers announced. This was a gain of approximately $17,500,000 over the close of business yesterday, and although a disappointment to the loan managers, is about 150,000,000 in excess of the amount subscribed in the corresponding period in the last loan campaign.

Former American Boy Among Those Slain in Great Battle

Above, Private George Norsigian of Worcester, known as "Tush" to his American customers, who was killed. Below, Charles B. Knutsen, a Gloucester private, reported wounded.

Charles B. Knutsen, whose name appeared in a recent list of casualties, as being wounded, is a private in the 104th Infantry. His home is at No. 147 Hoet Main street, Gloucester. His parents are dead. Knutsen enlisted in Company G of the old Eighth Massachusetts at the time of the Mexican trouble.

Private George Norsigian of the 104th Infantry, was a familiar figure in Worcester. He lived at No. 4 irving place. The announcement of his death in France brought sorrow to hundreds of persons to whom "Tush," as he was called, used to sell the AMERICAN.

Six years ago he stopped selling papers in front of Worcester City Hall to accept a position in the distributing force of the AMERICAN'S Worcester agent.

REPORT GERMAN ULTIMATUM TO HOLLAND

By International News Service.

London, April 23.—Germany has followed up her war threats against Holland by forwarding an ultimatum to The Hague, according to an article in the Daily News today written by the Lobby (Parliamentary) correspondent. It is based upon reports in diplomatic circles.

The British Foreign Office is following the situation closely and it is said that relations now between Germany and Holland are more greatly strained than ever before. Germany is basing her threats upon two grounds:

1—That Holland showed partiality towards the allies in returning a favorable answer to England's protest against allowing sand and gravel from Germany to be shipped into Belgium through Dutch canal routes.

2—That Holland violated the principles of neutrality in allowing the allies to take over her mercantile fleet.

The famous "sand and gravel dispute" occurred last year when England protested on the ground that Germany was using the materials in the construction of defensive works in Belgium and France. Germany used the canal route in order to relieve railway traffic for troops and ammunition movements.

Germany is striving hard to find a pretext to get Holland embroiled on one side or the other, despite the fact that the German military authorities have removed from the Dutch frontier many of the troops that have been massed there.

to mass troops at most strategic points. The Huns are concentrating especially in the Kemmel ridge, La Bassee and Somme sectors.

French troops broke up German raids on the southern flank of the Amiens salient, northeast of Rheims and in the Vosges mountains.

British Fleet Bottles Up German Submarine Bases

London, April 23.—The German submarine bases of Ostend and Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, were raided by British naval forces this morning, the Admiralty announced.

The British forces consisted of auxiliary vessels and six obsolete cruisers.

Five of the obsolete vessels were filled with concrete and were run aground and blown up to block the harbors.

"The raid met with a reasonable measure of success," the official statement said.

The complete details were not available when this dispatch was written, but the Admiralty announced that a further report would be made when the returning ships arrive at their base.

The raiding vessels were protected by covering ships.

By covering ships, the Admiralty evidently meant first line men of war.

The British foray against the Belgian coast was the first attempt, so far as publicly known, to bottle up the submarine bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend.

The orders for the destruction of the concrete filled ships were carried out with dash and brilliancy.

The official report on the operation issued by the Admiralty is as follows:

"Enemy destroyer and submarine bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge were raided this morning by auxiliary vessels and six obsolete cruisers. Five of the obsolete cruisers were filled with concrete and were used to block the channels. They were run aground and blown up after being abandoned by their crews according to orders.

"The other ships are now running to their bases. The raid was reasonably successful, but information concerning it is as yet scanty."

Raid on U-Boat Bases Relieves Monotony on the Battle Fronts

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

The chief feature of the war news today was a brilliantly executed raid by British naval forces against the German submarine bases of Zeebrugge and Ostend, on the Belgian coast.

An official statement, issued by the British Admiralty, stated that five obsolete ships, laden with concrete, had been run aground and blown up.

This manoeuvre was undoubtedly carried out with a view of bottling up the harbors but whether vessels were sunk at both places or at only one of them was not made plain by the initial statement given out in London.

The raid was one of the greatest pieces of initiative yet shown and the British Admiralty in speaking of the results said it had met with a reasonable measure of success.

The operation was carried out with vim and dash, the auxiliaries and obsolete cruisers being protected by men of war. The vessels unquestionably ran under the fire of German shore batteries, but the Admiralty in its first statement failed to say whether or not the German fire had inflicted any damage or casualties.

There is still an absence of big scale land operations on the western battle front.

The British have again improved and strengthened their positions on both the Picardy and Flanders battle fields, but there have been no decisive developments.

In the Albert sector, at the northern end of the Picardy battle zone, the British were successful in extending their lines, capturing sixty prisoners during the operation.

GERMANS PLAN DOUBLE BLOWS AT ALLIES

By International News Service.

London, April 23.—Increasing raiding and artillery activity along the Somme and Ancre Rivers and at various points north and south of the Lys River indicated today that a twin battle was brewing and that it would break out in all its fury, perhaps simultaneously on both the Picardy and Flanders fronts.

The Germans carried out raids on Monday in the sector of Hamel, south of the Somme, and immediately south of La Bassee canal, but gained no advantage. Northwest of Festubert a German raid was carried out in such force as to amount to virtually a local attack. The Germans succeeded in penetrating the British advanced position, but the operation was without significance as the same post has changed hands a number of times.

The French War Office, in its official report on Monday night, told of the growing violence of the artillery firing in the Montdidier sector, but said there had been no infantry actions.

Both sides have been massing troops and improving their lines by local operations, while the big guns have been carrying out intense duels.

The big question now is: Will the Germans deliver their main stroke? It may fall in the district of the Kemmel ridge, in Belgium, a position of the highest strategic importance, or it may come in the sector of La Bassee canal, where the Germans tried several times before to break through in the direction of the British railhead position at Bethune.

There has been an increase of activity south of the Scarpe River, opposite Arras, but the last German thrust there received a check so decisive that their hope of breaching the British front in that district was shattered.

NEW ENGLAND LIBERTY LOAN GIRLS DO THEIR PATRIOTIC BIT TO SMASH THE HUN AND WIN THE WAR

FEARED SCENE AT THE TRAIN WHEN HE CAME EAST

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

That Charles S. Eaton, then proprietor of Thompson's Spa, was very much in love with his wife when he left a California hospital to go East without her was the opinion offered today in a deposition by Dr. Dudley A. Fulton, who attended him during his illness.

Dr. Fulton believed this, even in face of the fact that Mrs. Eaton had been excluded and Eaton had requested that no gifts, letters or flowers be received from her.

Dr. Fulton also stated also stated that Mr. Eaton had told him he never would live with her again, but that he feared her to such an extent that he believed if he saw her he would probably be reconciled to her again.

PHYSICIAN'S DEPOSITION.

The testimony occupied most of the morning session in the Suffolk Supreme Court, where the widow, Mrs. Ella F. Bartlett Eaton, is fighting for a chance to contest the will.

The ante-nuptial agreement, drawn up by Edward F. Hutchins, was produced. By this agreement Mrs. Eaton was to share alike with the Eaton sons, and in it she waived dower and all other rights. This contract Mrs. Eaton seeks to set aside.

PULSE AROUND 160.

Dr. Fulton, in cross interrogatory, stated that he had told Mrs. Eaton he found her husband with a pulse around 160, and that he feared he could not survive with a heart beat of that rate. He told her at the same time that it was necessary to take him to a hospital to surround him with proper care. Dr. Fulton admitted that Mrs. Eaton then volunteered to move to the other end of the hospital, where she might not come in contact with her husband.

The physician also reminded Mrs. Eaton that in such cases it was often advisable to keep the patient away from his family entirely, and that she then remarked: "Here is cunning."

The deposition stated that Mrs. Eaton asked for Miss Larsen's discharge and that he agreed to this as soon as Mr. Eaton's condition should permit.

Mrs. Eaton commented on the possibility of danger to Mr. Eaton from a ten-mile automobile trip in the ambulance, and that as a matter of fact Mr. Eaton was very tired and exhausted.

Miss Larsen was dismissed, according to the promise of the doctor, and Mr. Eaton expressed some doubt then as to their ability to secure another nurse. Mrs. Eaton then permitted to send flowers to her husband, and that he, Dr. Fulton, counselled her not to do so.

The doctor instructed nurses at the hospital not to admit Mrs. Eaton to the room of her husband, and eventually excluded all visitors from the room unless permission was given by the doctor.

The matter of the will, the codicil and the fact that Dr. Ashlam was called as a witness was related by the physician.

HE STILL LOVED HER.

Dr. Fulton's deposition stated that in his opinion Mr. Eaton was very much in love with his wife when he left the hospital, and that he, Dr. Fulton, expressed his hope several times that they might be reconciled.

The son, Ezra Eaton, visited his father once or twice a day. Eventually the physician requested the son to visit his father only in his presence.

Mrs. Eaton received some anonymous letters, and she called Dr. Fulton into consultation. She said: "Ask Dr. Dudley Fulton. He will tell you more than you will care to know." Mrs. Eaton suspected Miss Larsen of writing the letters and asked Dr. Fulton to find out if Mr. Eaton was also receiving them, the deposition continued.

Mrs. Eaton expressed indignation because Mr. Eaton was contemplating going East without her, and asked Dr. Fulton to let her know when he was going, if she could not go, too. This, Dr. Fulton stated, he told Mrs. Eaton he could not promise to do.

Q.—If he had not been up for eight or nine weeks, did you consider it safe for Mr. Eaton to take the trip East without a nurse. A.—That is not the fact. Mr. Eaton had been up three or four days and had been out of doors several times.

Q.—Who made the trip East with him. A.—The son, Ezra.

Q.—Did they take every precaution to travel without anyone knowing. A.—They did.

FEARED SCENE AT TRAIN.

Dr. Fulton stated that Mr. Eaton feared that Mrs. Eaton might be at the train and make a scene, and that he said if he did see her, he feared he might yield to her influence and make up with her again.

When Mr. Eaton first went home Dr. Fulton said that he treated him by wire, but as Mr. Eaton was not so well, he consulted engaging another doctor in the East, and wrote the history of the case to Dr. Richard Cabot.

Dr. Fulton said he was under the impression that if affairs continued as they were, a divorce would result. He added that it was suggested to him that Eaton believed Mrs. Eaton had made some attempt to poison her husband, and that he had hoped they would never make such a charge against her.

Questioned regarding Mrs. Eaton's attitude toward him, Dr. Fulton said she was "often impolite over the telephone, always courteous in conversation, but very discourteous in talking to others about him."

Mrs. Eaton accused Dr. Fulton of not taking her into his confidence, saying: "Where you made your mistake was in taking a trained nurse into your confidence, instead of me."

Dr. Fulton testified to a conversation with Mrs. James Gray, in which he expressed the greatest regret that Mrs. Eaton had brought him into the case, as he had made every effort to keep away from the domestic side of the affair. He stated that he and Miss Larsen appeared before a lawyer in California, as Miss Larsen threatened to sue Mrs. Eaton unless the latter stopped "threatening" her. WAS PAID $5,500.

The doctor's deposition related his trip East, and said that his check for treatment of Mr. Eaton was $5,500, and that he based his charge on the ability of the patient to pay and not on the number of visits made.

Q.—Had the nurse, Miss Larsen, told you in confidence the chauffeur that he knew a good deal about conditions? A.—Miss Larsen only told me anything regarding the chauffeur. I never remember talking to him but once.

The doctor stated that Mr. Eaton has told him that he would never live with Mrs. Eaton again.

The will was never mentioned to the physician until after Mr. Eaton entered the hospital.

Miss Larsen intimated that Mr. Eaton was concerned about his food and medicine, and the doctor then advised Miss Larsen to be around most of the time and see to the food and medicine if the patient felt that way.

In redirect testimony Dr. Fulton stated that he only time he ever told Mrs. Eaton that she could not do anything, was when she insisted on entering the sick room, when it disturbed her husband.

Because of Eaton's request that no gifts, flowers or letters be accepted from Mrs. Eaton, Dr. Fulton advised against Mrs. Eaton sending flowers.

Dr. Fulton further explained the threatened suit for breach of promise from Miss Eaton. He said the latter claimed she had given the nurse a house at Long Beach following undue friendship.

The physician admitted that it was "for the benefit of all concerned" that he went to Lawyer Paige's office in Los Angeles, where Miss Larsen stated that she had received $6,000 from her stepfather's estate from Mr. Eaton, and that any properties she had were purchased with the savings of years, of her mother and father.

DREW WILL FOR EATON.

Edward W. Hutchins, the next witness, testified that he had been counsel for Mr. Eaton for twenty-five years or more.

Q.—Did he consult you regarding business affairs? A.—He did.

Q.—Did he consult you regarding domestic affairs? A.—He did.

Q.—What had you observed in regard to mental characteristics, the entertainment of suspicions regarding others? A.—He was cautious in matters of business, timid as regards what he was going to do or say, slow to give his confidence and trust.

Q.—Did you draw his will for him? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you draw a will for him

Hail to New England's Liberty Loan Girls!

While the boys "over there" are fighting with our allies to "make the world safe for democracy," a group of young women, employes of the New England division of the Liberty Loan Committee, are working like Trojans to help win the war by classifying credit slips for thousands of dollars on the third floor of the Exchange Building.

These young women are most painstaking in their work, which is supervised by Donald D. McKay of the Liberty Loan Committee of New England, and handle as many as 20,000 slips a day, and sort out a mass of correspondence seeking information on matters concerning the apportionment of Liberty Loans in the various towns and cities in New England.

Among the young women engaged in this line of endeavor are the Misses Minna Sherman, Catherine West, Alice Rosenthal, Grace L. Maccabe, Madeline Ellis, May Ryan, Lillian Rosen, Minnie A. Clark, H. I. Phillips, Emily Wilson, Mabel Littlefield, and Vera F. Godfrey. Dwight P. Bliss, the office boy, is a valuable assistant to them in handling the baskets of mail which arrive about three times a day.

the time of his marriage, July 4, 1909? A.—I did.

Q.—Had you been consulted in the drawing of the ante-nuptial agreement? A.—I had.

Q.—Did anyone else direct you how it was to be drawn? A.—No.

Q.—What was done with the ante-nuptial agreement after it was signed? A.—Both copies remained in my office.

PRODUCES CORRESPONDENCE.

Letters and telegrams exchanged between Mr. Eaton and his lawyer while the former was ill in California were produced following instruction by the attorney for the court that they be produced. Mr. Hutchins had questioned his ability to produce such evidence, as "privileged communications" between lawyer and client. These relating to codicils that Mr. Eaton desired to add to his will. A letter written by Mr. Eaton stated, "I have not allowed Ezra, my son, to have anything to do with this. I have kept him out of it."

The same letter related to a Swiss chalet which Mr. Eaton had built in California when Mr. Eaton met her. He gave $5,000 to her to pay off the mortgage, gave another $1,000, and paid from $2,000 to $3,000 in debts for her. This chalet was sold later for $21,000 and the money put into the new house.

Eaton stated that he had given to Mrs. Eaton a good deal of jewelry, which had increased in value. This included a string of pearls.

Mrs. Eaton would prefer to live in Paris than in this country, the letter read, "so I believe that if Mrs. Eaton did have the house she would not live in it very long before she would rent it."

One clause of a codicil, providing that "should anyone contest the will he should receive from the estate five dollars only," was stricken out entirely on a telegram sent to Mr. Eaton by Mr. Hutchins.

Later, I remember codicil, left the Los Angeles property for Mrs. Eaton's personal use, with the proviso that she "occupy it three out of four years, and nine months of each of these three years and that she should provide rent it."

Mr. Hutchins testified that on the return of Mr. Eaton to Marblehead he saw, he saw him on May 11.

GIVES HUSBAND SHE DIVORCES $65,000

By International News Service.

New York, April 23.—"Dearie, you're leaving me stranded." These five words won $65,000 for Henry Welch Rogers, of New York and Philadelphia, according to relatives in a divorce case yesterday. Mrs. Grace R. Rogers, a wealthy woman, was awarded an interlocutory decree of divorce in New City, N. Y., yesterday from Henry Welsh Rogers. A Mrs. Lopes, of Philadelphia, was named in the complaint. Despite the charges Mrs. Rogers had compassion on her husband. She settled the $65,000 on him to provide for his future after the parting of their ways.

The details of the transaction whereby Mrs. Rogers agreed to provide for life for the husband she desired to divorce were later made known. It was said that Rogers had no business of any kind. His wife supported him, according to a statement made last night.

The couple were married eleven years. There were no children. When the case was heard yesterday Mrs. Rogers took the stand and told the incident on which she based her complaint. Her husband did testify.

H. C. PETERS ON TRIAL ACCUSED OF LARCENY

Henry Clay Peters, former Republican candidate for Congress, went on trial today in the Superior Court on the charge of larceny.

Peters, who was arrested in Austin, Texas, is charged with having secured sums of money from the family of Jeremiah Shea of Cambridge on the pretext that he could secure them large profits in the stock market.

The money given to Peters is said to have included the sum of $100, the property of Shea's fifteen-year-old daughter Marie L., representing a fund which had accumulated from the time she was an infant.

In presenting the case to Judge Lawton and a jury, Assistant District Attorney Pindar Field said that Peters met Shea, who is a grocery dealer in Cambridge, at a garden party at St. Paul's parish in that city. Peters was a salesman for a Boston brokerage house at the time, he said, and sold Shea a large part of their deposits in the bank and turned them over to Peters. He was to purchase it outright and turn the profits in the stock of the Alaska Gold Mining Company. He is charged with having secured $1,000 from Mrs. Shea and $750 from her husband.

EASTMAN SEES DEFECTS IN 'L' CONTROL

Public Service Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman today declared that three big "if's" are necessary to put the Boston Elevated back on its feet. He based them in this order:

Public confidence.

Public credit.

Adequate control.

Unless the situation is relieved by constructive legislation, the Elevated will pass into the hands of a receiver, Mr. Eastman told the Ways and Means committee of the Legislature.

A receivership would be detrimental to the public as well as to the stockholders," Commissioner Eastman said.

MANY DEFECTS IN BILL.

"The property at present is so run down as to make it impossible of rendering adequate service to the public or of economical operation by the company. The money to repair this situation has got to come from the earnings of the road or be derived from contributions from the public.

"The earnings of the Elevated for the past three months were less than for the corresponding period last year and the outlook is far from encouraging."

Mr. Eastman then criticised some of the bills which he said were contained in the public control bill reported by the joint legislative Committee on Street Railways and Metropolitan Affairs.

He said that the bill should include the purchase by the State of the Cambridge tunnel. This would effect a saving of two per cent a year on the six millions of dollars that must be raised to rebuild the Elevated and would help to provide good service.

ABSOLUTE CONTROL.

He said that the bill should provide for permanent public control. That would safeguard both the people and the stockholders and would give the board of permanency that would attract capital at the most advantageous rate.

He said that public control should be absolute. "The private directors should not be allowed to run the affairs of the public trustees who will manage and operate the system for benefit of the carriders, the employees and the public.

He said that the bill should provide that one-half the cost of subway rentals borne by the taxpayers in the cities and towns in which the Elevated operates. The car-riders would not be forced to bear the entire cost of subway rentals. Part of the cost should be borne by the others who derive some benefit.

SITUATION CHANGED.

Representative Young of Weston pointed out that Governor McCall was opposed to the Cambridge tunnel purchase a year ago on the ground that the state should reserve its credit for war work.

"But the situation has changed since then," said Mr. Eastman. "The president of the United States, in a letter to Mr. McAdoo, said that transportation is an indispensable army of war, and that every cent invested to keep it up to the maximum of efficiency should be expended."

Mr. Eastman promised the committee that he would work with its members in drawing up a bill which would meet the objections raised against the pending bill.

"Get There Before We Die," Briton's Plea for U. S. Forces

By International News Service.

New York, April 23.—"Great Britain has no reserve army to send to France. We know, but never brag, for fools make get there before we die," was the opening of warning which Lieutenant Colonel E. Evans Dantar, British recruiting officer of the United States, sounded for America's response.

"We have only a half million men enrolled to Great Britain and Ireland, and they have fought and died on thirteen battle fronts," he said. "We are only saying this to you, as we wouldn't say our backs are against the wall.

BAY STATE ROAD WILL REFUSE DEMANDS

General opposition by cities and towns to the higher rates of fare for which the Bay State Street Railway is preparing to apply to the public service Commission was admitted at a hearing today by Vice President Hiram Bronson of the road.

He said, however, that the commission ought to grant these additional rates would not be granted. In one instance Newburyport, a city, wanted a higher base rate than the road had fixed on account of local conditions, but the proposed rate would not be changed, he declared.

He announced that low rate workingmen's tickets would be sold for the benefit of the employes of the General Electric works at Lynn in place of closed and two-cent tickets being charged.

Lowell merchants asked that the one cent fare be restored, but the road objected to this. The fare will be raised up to 6 a. m., so that morning and noon employes might take advantage of the low rate. Mr. Bronson said that the road had asked to have the Woods Commission extended to include the entire system, but that the request was denied. Lowell now is being charged a higher fare than the city proper.

The new rate of fare asked for 1,000 feet extension of the zone, as far as Pleasant street, and for lower fares in the summer for recreation purposes. Mr. Bronson said the road would be unable to grant either request.

The town of Essex protested at the fares as being too high, and declared that the road is not entitled to any higher rates.

Attorney W. Broadhead, city councilor of Salem, stated that the citizens of Salem alone took $10,000 annually from the road. This is a loss, he said, which could be made the Woods Commission extended to include the entire system. He also said that the Salem district were being charged a higher fare than the city proper.

shire, $139,000 and Vermont $28,000. Boston's net total climbed to $23,132,000.

Thirty additional cities and towns in New England notified the committees today that they had gone over the top, making a total of 413 communities in all to have reached and exceeded their minimum quota. Portsmouth, N. H., exceeded their quota for the third time, and has an honor flag flying.

Washington officials are endeavoring to learn whether the Minneapolis or St. Paul district was first to reach its quota. Both have gone over the top, but from the figures available it has been impossible, thus far, to learn which had the honor of being the first.

The completion of the St. Louis quota caused a big patriotic demonstration in the city. Powerful bombs were exploded, factory whistles were blown and bells were rung. Boats in the river participated in the great demonstration. The entire district, exclusive of St. Louis, has now set out for an individual subscription total of $197,884.

75 PER CENT. SUBSCRIBERS.

Arkansas reported that 42 counties out of 75 have not yet filed their distribution reports, but that they have oversubscribed.

Of a population quota of 131,562 souls, Missouri reports a total of 108,000 subscribers.

Approximately 4,645 communities in the Minneapolis district have earned the right to display honor flags, and the total will probably reach 6,000 from present indications.

The campaign in the Richmond district has taken on new life during the present week. Maryland has reached a total of $9,800,000; District of Columbia, $4,700,000; Virginia, $13,700,000; North Carolina, $2,600,000; South Carolina, $6,300,000, making a total of $32,500,000 for the district.

A subscription by cable from Edgar Cobbt who is with the United States aviation forces in France has been received at Fremont, N. C.

37 NEW FLAGS ISSUED.

Thirty-seven additional honor flags were granted today by the New England Loan Committee. These went to Winchester, Stoughton, Douglas, Duxbury, Winthrop, Maynard and Norwell in Massachusetts; Whiting, Woodstock, Jamesburg, Fairfield, Island Pond, Jacksonville, Peru, Wheelock and Wilmington in Vermont; Auburn, Lewiston, Bath, Hero, Columbia, Bailey's Mills, Cutler, Robinson, Haynesville, Saco, Wiscasset, Jefferson, Newcastle, Alna, Whitefield and Winslow in Maine; Sandown and Lebanon in New Hampshire; Forestville and Tariffville, Connecticut, and North Kingstown, Rhode Island.

Two honor flags have been awarded to the cities of Lewiston and Auburn, Maine. These two cities have campaigned jointly, pooling Lewiston's $8,215,000 with Auburn's $321,000.

The Order of Scottish Clans has purchased $45,000 worth of bonds, making a total subscription of $1,800,000 by the order. This does not include the purchases made by the subordinate clans, of which there are 178 in the United States.

APPEAL BY HALLOWELL.

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the New England Liberty Loan Committee, has sent the following appeal to all State, local and district chairman throughout New England.

"There are only eleven more days to receive subscriptions, and we ask you to make every effort to attain your quota and report to Federal Reserve Bank not later than Friday next, April 26, which the President has designated as Liberty Day. If you have already reached your quota, make special effort for additional subscriptions on that day.

"An over-subscription of this loan is the best support we can give our boys at the front, and the best immediate answer those of us at home can make to Germany. The time is short, the cause is great, and as our soldiers and our allies over there have rallied under one leader and "Over the Top," so let us rally behind our government, and with one accord put this loan through to immediate success in a manner worthy of the traditions of New England."

GOOD WORK FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. William H. Schofield of Peterborough, chairman for New Hampshire, reports that up to Saturday night the Women's Liberty Loan Committees throughout the State had secured 1,802 subscription, totaling totaling $454,500.

In Vermont the women have secured 1,214 subscriptions, totaling $242,800, according to Chairman Mrs. Edward Curtis Smith of St. Albans.

Mrs. Walter A. Peck, of Providence, chairman for Rhode Island, has a total to date of $753,000 to the credit of the women's committees.

In Maine Mrs. John F. Hill, of Augusta, chairman, reports 1,135 subscriptions with a total of $254,300.

Hartford, Ct., alone has raised $2,85,850.

American Wins Praise of Army and Navy Journal

The Army and Navy Journal, under date of April 20, praises the Boston AMERICAN for its effort to make better accommodations for baseball at Camp Devens. It characterizes the effort of the Boston AMERICAN as successful.

Baseball is booming at Camp Devens, reports this journal. The athletic officer has already assigned a scheduled fifteen games for a competition and the Boston AMERICAN is conducting a successful campaign for funds to build a baseball grandstand.

GAME IS NEARLY WON FOR AYER; FUND GROWS

ing as easy as possible is one of the least you can do.

Already money has already been added to the total through the first day at the Globe Theatre where, for this week, 10 per cent. of the gross receipts have been given to the fund.

Manager Frank Meagher of the Globe Theatre made this generous offer to Lieutenant Deming, official custodian of the fund, and it is expected that a considerable sum will be added to the fund.

The play at the Globe is well worth one's seeing, irrespective of any other consideration, but those who attend this week can feel that they are doing their bit in helping along the fund.

"Tarzan of the Apes," written by Edgar Rice Burroughs, is a play which made the New York audiences sit up and take notice, even on Broadway.

The story is that of the adventures of a youth who, when a baby, was stolen from his mother by a huge ape and taken into the jungle, where he was brought up in the haunts of wild animals. Through his youth in this wild life he gains tremendous strength and learns, like his ape half-brothers, to swing himself from branch to branch of the trees.

Meanwhile, his father, an English nobleman, is spending a fortune to locate him. Tarzan at one time in the play plays a lion in full view of his audience and rescues a charming young woman from the beast. A romance grows out of this episode and the ape-man finally becomes a man in fact and returns to civilized life in England.

TAG DAY TO HELP.

The play, which cost $300,000 to produce, was made in the wilderness of South America, where a whole company of over two thousand persons was transported to make the picture.

Big results for the fund are expected to result from the tag day at Wood Island Park on Saturday, when a committee of girls from the Maud-Morrison Company will sell tags at the baseball game between the teams of that company and of the Carr Fastener Company of Cambridge. The girls who will handle the tag day sale are Misses Harriet T. Dunaway, chairman; Irene McCarthy, Mary Cardoza, Catherine Flynn, Geraldine Keefe, Mildred Gibbs and Gertrude Joyce.

Governor McCall has accepted an invitation to appear and make a few remarks in the interest of the project at the dance to be given for this fund at Lyceum Hall, Winchester, on Wednesday night, by the telephone girls of Winchester.

The committee in charge of this affair is composed of Mary J. Kelley, Anna Creighton, chairman, and Grace Davis, treasurer, and they have been working hard to make the ball a success. The entire proceeds will go to swell the baseball fund.

TWO GIRLS GATHER COIN.

A check for $1073 has been received, the money having been collected by Misses Helen Linnehan and Alice White at the opening matinee of the Old Colony Driving Club on the fair grounds at Weymouth.

Meanwhile individual subscriptions are welcome.

A word as to the right way to make your contributions to this fund.

DO NOT MAKE ANY CHECKS FOR THE FUND PAYABLE TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN. MAKE ALL CHECKS PAYABLE TO ROBERT C. DEMING, TREASURER, WHO IS IN CHARGE OF THE FUND. THE AMERICAN IS ACTING SIMPLY AS A TRANSPER AGENT.

Some of the subscriptions do not appear in the published list because the checks have been sent to Lieutenant Deming, custodian of the fund at Camp Devens, and his latest official list has not yet been received for publication.

Three soldiers from Camp Devens, members of the East Cambridge Associates, "passed the hat" at the seventh annual dance of the associates, at Institute Hall and took in $8.22.

The dance was a huge success from every point of view and the dancing lasted well into the morning. During an intermission in the dances Representative William R. McManaman made a speech for the fund. He said in part: "This fund is the best thing that yet has been started for the soldiers at Camp Devens. All we can do towards making it a success will not be too much."

SCRUBWOMEN AT CAPITOL STRIKE

All but Twelve Quit Work at State House—Demand 30 Cents an Hour

Demanding an increase of five cents an hour, making a total of thirty cents, forty-six scrubwomen employed at the State House went on strike today. The women have been scrubbing the floors in the Capitol for twenty-five cents an hour, but declare that private employers pay thirty.

The women, who work about twenty-four hours a week for $6, declare that some time ago Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick told them it was a matter for the Legislature and asked them to wait a year. To this one of the scrubwomen replied: "Live horse and eat grain."

At 9 o'clock today, after finishing their work, the forty-six women announced that they would not come back until the increase was given them. They declare that the State should pay better than private employers and that if necessary they will take the matter to the Governor. There was also talk of a mass meeting on Boston Common.

Twelve scrubwomen did not go out with the others as they are nearing sixty, the age at which they will be retired with a $3 a week pension. They did not wish to endanger their chances of receiving this pension.

TARBOX FIRST LAWRENCE MAN WOUNDED AT FRONT

Lawrence, April 22.—Elmer Tarbox was the first Lawrence draftee to be wounded in France. Private Tarbox went to Camp Devens last September with the first quota from this city, and was later transferred to the 104th Infantry at Westfield, going overseas with that unit. His wife, Mrs. Annie Tarbox, was notified yesterday by the War Department that her husband had been wounded in action.

HOLD CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR FOR TRIAL

Alfred Buzzi of No. 4 Prentiss street, Worcester, was held in $1,000 by United States Commissioner Hayes for failing to register in compliance with President Wilson's proclamation. Buzzi, who claims to be a conscientious objector, said that he does not believe in war.

He pleaded guilty to the charge and the case against him was continued to April 26. In default of bail he was committed to the East Cambridge Jail.

Spring of Eternal Youth Is Found by Depew

By International News Service.

New York, April 22.—Former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew has succeeded where Ponce de Leon failed. He has found the spring of eternal youth, or something very like it. Today he is eighty-four and "going strong," according to his own account. He said:

"I'm eighty-four today. But what's eighty-four? Wait and see me, when I'm 100. I'm sure to keep getting younger all the time. It gets to be a habit."

LAWRENCE LIBERTY LOAN STATUE MODEL TO MARRY

Lawrence, April 22.—F. G. Caspar, Lawrence's Liberty Loan statue model, whose resemblance to the "Captive But Not Conquered" classic has caused widespread comment, will marry Miss Margaret Durgan, a popular Lawrence school teacher, according to an announcement made yesterday. The secret of the engagement was given out accidentally, the wedding having been planned to take place very soon, it is said, secretly also. Mr. Caspar was one of the last quota sent to Camp Devens from this city.

UNIFORMED MEN WORK FOR 'TRUE NAME' BILL

For the first time in history, men in the uniform of the Army and Navy of the United States are at work in the lobby of the State House in the interest of legislation.

They are urging the Legislature to pass the "True Name" bill, which seeks to wipe out immorality in the public hotels and lodging houses of the State. The men are line officers of junior grade, evidently assigned to the task by their commanding officers. At the early hearings, the bill was supported by both Major-General Hodges, commander of Camp Devens, and by Rear-Admiral Wood, commandant of the First Naval District.

Every member of the Legislature today received a letter from the Council of National Defence which asserts that vice is open in Massachusetts and adds that "the War and Navy Departments urge the passage of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts House bill providing for the regulation of lodging houses and hotels."

The bill, now in the Senate, is a revival of the old "True Name" bill recommended to the Legislature several years ago by the old White Slave Commission. Its purpose is to prevent soldiers and sailors, particularly, from fraternizing with questionable women in hotels and lodging houses.

The "True Name" section of the bill provides:

"No person shall write, or cause to be written, or knowingly permit to be written, in any register in any lodging house or hotel a false or different name or designation than the true name, or name in ordinary use, of the person registering therein. Nor shall any person occupying such room or room fail to register."

Violation of the "True Name" section is punishable by a fine of $25. Fines and imprisonment are provided for violation of the other sections.

In addition to the military authorities, the bill now in the support of Cardinal O'Connell, President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs and the State Department of Health.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a scanty supply of acidity, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Advertisement.

"TOOT-TOOT" A MERRY FARCE

"Toot-Toot" received a rousing reception at the Colonial Theatre last night when a Boston audience had its first chance to see the latest of Henry W. Savage's musical productions. "Toot-Toot" is full of hilarity, merry music, mirthful situations and lines and pretty girls. The comedy is Rupert Hughes' farce "Excuse Me," set to music with lyrics by Herbert Hirsley and music by Jerome Kern. It is almost needless to state that the Hirsley-Kern combination has produced a most delightful entertainment.

As in the Hughes' farce the plot relates the difficulties of Marjorie Newton and her fiance Lieutenant Mallery, who has been ordered to camp. Plans for a war wedding go astray because all the ministers are at the front. However, wise cupid does not wait, even for ministers, and the sweethearts decide to start for camp and take a chance on finding a minister on board the train.

Other passengers on the train include a company of dancers, a couple on their way to Reno and a minister and his wife. The latter, a world traveling incognito and dares not reveal his calling because before discovering that Lieutenant Mallery is seeking a minister he has been cutting up two many capers. The journey is filled with funny situations and ends happily when the minister is discovered and the marriage ceremony is performed.

The action is broken by a number of attractive songs and dances. "The Last Long Mile" is one of the most popular songs. It is sung with the aid of a company of soldiers to that one who give a remarkable drill. Khaki is in evidence during much of the play.

The dance hit is entitled, "It," and is performed by four members of the company. They propose to follow the leader in dancing anything proposed, and the audience gives them a busy few minutes recalling them time and time again.

The principals in the cast include Louise Allen, Louise Groody, Zoe Barnett, Rose Kessler, Paul Dwyer, Eddie Garvey, Harry Greenwood, Harry Fern and James Stevens. There is a large and attractive chorus.

The scenes show a railway station, a Pullman train bound for the West and a rocky pass in the eastern mountains.

MODERN THEATRE—Two contrasting photoplays are on the bill which was shown for the first times in Boston yesterday. Marguerite Clark is pictured in the role of Maxine Ian Foster's stories, "Rich Man, Poor Man." The story tells of a young girl who, without her knowledge, is presented to a man of great wealth as his long granddaughter. He says he has nor given him happiness, but he finds a real joy in the presence of the hidden girl. When the deception is revealed to them he rises to the occasion and refuses to release her, for he has found that without her he is poor indeed. On the same bill was shown Wallace Reid in "The House of Silence," a story of the unraveling of a mysterious crime in a house of silence by a young clubman.

DANCING ACT HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

An unusually entertaining bill is offered to patrons by H. F. Keith's this week. Hessie McCoy-Davis heads the bill with a dancing act, to which is added the fourth conflict of Miss Liberty in the wars of the Revolution, "61 to 64." The dancing of Miss Davis is ably assisted by two talented vocalists.

Ray Samuels, popularly styled the "blue streak of vaudeville," offered some clever impersonations in a monologue of the same audience was so well pleased with her offerings that a supply of encores was demanded.

Clark and Hamilton, English musical comedy stars, delighted the audience with their act. Willie Hoenner and Marbalyl, novelty singers and dancers, made a decided hit. Their fashionable scenery was an outstanding feature, which is under the personal supervision of Mr. Hoenner.

Sam Hearn, "the Rube with his Fiddle and Bow," was well received, as was also Lillie Tyler, the tallest headliner in vaudeville.

Moran and Mack, Clarifore comedians, proved the real laugh getters of the evening's performance. Their dialogue, full of local hits, with exaggeratingly described threats to do bodily harm to one another, was frequently interrupted by prolonged laughter on the part of the audience.

Miss McCoy took a leading part in obtaining pledges for the Liberty Loan. Thousands of dollars' worth of bonds were pledged during the few minutes set aside for that purpose.

Worden Brothers offered a foot juggling act which was extraordinarily dexterous.

The Lunette Sisters, dancing artists, concluded the evening's entertainment with an able offering of whirling dances.

Timely pictures were shown in the Hearst-Pathe News pictorial.

WALDRON'S CASINO—The Million Dollar Dolls, in a two-act musical myth, "Doll Land," began a week's run yesterday at Manager Waldron's Casino Theatre. The book is by Abe Leavitt, with music and lyrics by Ruby Cowan and Jack Lee.

The principal comedian is Cliff Gordon, a newcomer in the burlesque field. He carries with him a line of speech, expressions, mannerisms, gestures and attractive chorus that are his own invention.

Opposite to Bragdon is Scotty Fridell, in the character of a tramp, and Harry Mandel and Walter Morrison in straight roles.

The female principals with the company include Ede May, a fascinating prima donna; Norma Harry, a clever ingenue, and Gladys Parker, a dainty soubrette, who goes next season with Waldron's own Bostonians, made a hit with her singing and dancing. There is a great beauty chorus.

PARK THEATRE—The program for this week at the Park Theatre is of great merit. There are three exceptionally good stars in the productions and, as usual, the bill is filled with Brady in the world masterpiece, "The Trap," in six acts, in which Miss Brady has the leading role. Her acting is wonderful and it is one of the strongest parts she has ever taken. How she rises to the climax stances that surround her through no fault of her own, and overcomes many obstacles as she climbs the ladder of success makes a powerful and interesting drama.

Edith Storey in the Metro drama, "Treasure of the Sea," in six acts, calls into play her versatile powers that have made her a star, and puts her best efforts into this photoplay.

Furnishing some very fine comedy in one of his best productions is the much-talked-about man of the screen, Douglas Fairbanks, in "The Mystery of the Leaping Fish," and he furnishes many laughs for the audience.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—The program at the Castle Square is one of the most popular and varied bills ever given at that house. Harold Lockwood appears in "The Lander," a colorful story of romance and nature, and Bessie Love appears in "The Great Adventure." To add to the varied nature of the bill, a Mack Sennett comedy entitled "Friend Husband" is given.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—The Kuma Four led the vaudeville bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday. They are a quartet of Oriental bazar entertainers, commonly termed "Wonder Workers," and their program consisted of feats of magic, mystery, melodies and dances. Al White and company offered a sensational one-act play of human interest, "The Answer." Harriet and Manion convulsed their audience with their comicalities in the skit, "Uncle Jerry at the Opry." Others on the bill included Charles Reilly, in songs and comedy; La Mont and Wright, in singing and dancing, and the Three Steppers in a catchy dance offering.

Coming Events

ACTORS' FUND BENEFIT—There was more cheering news received from New York yesterday concerning the Actors' Fund Benefit, which is to be held this year at the Colonial Theatre next Tuesday afternoon, April 30. The good message read that Julia Marlowe would appear to do her part in making the program what has been claimed for it, the greatest bill that has ever been offered for the fund. Each day is seeing something new that is to be added, so with the offerings from the different attractions playing in Boston there is every claim to authority for the belief the management maintains. Seats are obtainable at the box office of the theatre.

LADY CHETWYND IN "HER COUNTRY"—Next Monday, April 29, Lady Chetwynd and her company in "Her Country" will begin a brief engagement at the Park Square Theatre. This play has enjoyed a two years' run in London where it was seen under the title, "Kultur at Home," and it is closing a twelve weeks' engagement in New York city, from whence it comes with cast intact directly here. The story of the play serves to depict home conditions in the German empire that, despite their acknowledged truthfulness, furnish comedy that has been productive of laughter as well as enlightenment.

Straight Tips on the Theatres

By THE DRAMATIC EDITOR.

Hubert Theatre—"So Long Letty," the Kenny Messrs. musical comedy with Charlotte Greenwood and a big cast, continues to spill big houses.

Hollis Street Theatre—Alexandra Carlisle in "A Country Chairman," by Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, one of the brightest and most attractive comedies of the year.

Plymouth Theatre—"The Man Who Came Back," the remarkable melo-drama by Jules Goodman which has been with us this season, extends its run.

Park Square Theatre—"Cheating Cheaters," Max Marcin's amusing comedy, enters its last week.

Wilbur Theatre—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "Keep Her Smiling," one of the season's most charming films.

Majestic Theatre—Second week of David W. Griffith's stupendous film of the war, "Hearts of the World," taken in the war zone, with a tender love theme running through it.

Tremont Temple—Ambassador James W. Gerard himself in "My Four Years in Germany," the great film play which is making a sensational hit here.

On the screen there were shown the latest Kinograms, and following was the photoplay, "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," a timely spectacle dealing with the intimate life of the Potsdam ruler.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Arturo Barcardi, regarded to be the "man with 1,000 personalities," headed the bill at Loew's St. James Theatre yesterday. He presented a novel playlet of much action. He amused especially with his rendering of a transparent scenery how these changes are accomplished. The surrounding bill included "The Golden Bird," a variety that accompanies its mistress, Hattie Darnell, and her group of girls in vocalizations and dances, and singing and comedy; Berkoff and Gray, in a variety offering, Dassit and Bailey, in equilibristic feats. On the screen there were shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Today," picturing Florence Reed as the butterfly wife.

BEACON THEATRE—At the Beacon Theatre yesterday there were shown two photoplays for the first time in Boston. In "Rich Man, Poor Man," Marguerite Clark is pictured in a girl presented to a wealthy man as the granddaughter he long has been searching for. She does not know the fatal gift of her position, but the man discovers it. The companion photoplay was "The House of Silence," picturing Wallace Reid in the role of a young clubman who is an amateur sleuth and is drawn to the mystery of the silent house through a murder committed there.

COLUMBIA THEATRE — Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," was shown yesterday at the Columbia Theatre. This has proved to be the most successful screening of this remarkable drama of symbolism that was written by the Belgian Shakespeare. It is a photoplay really beautiful that is bound to please all classes of spectators. On the same bill was shown Carmel Meyers in "The Girl in the Dark."

LANCASTER THEATRE—Yesterday at the Lancaster Theatre there was shown the William Fox production, "A Camouflage Kiss," picturing the tragedy of a wife of a soldier who is one of two that are in love with the one man. This man is of the philandering sort, and the girl teaches him a lesson in a humorous way that makes for pleasing comedy.

FENWAY THEATRE—"The Whispering Chorus," featuring Kathlyn Williams, directed by the master director, Cecil B. DeMille, heads the bill at the Fenway.

The story shows John Trimble, an employe of a large corporation, threatened with exposure of theft.

Harry Morey will appear on the same program in "A Bachelor's Children."

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, William S. Hart will appear in his latest production, "The Tiger Man."

COMEDY WELL PLAYED AT COPLEY

That pleasing perennial, Sheridan's "School for Scandal," is in full flower at the Copley Theatre, as fragrant and brilliant a bloom as ever. Veteran theatre-goers often hesitate to attend a performance of such an old time favorite unless it is presented by an all-star cast, but they need have no fear about witnessing the Copley presentation, for it is given with due regard to traditions by a company whose sterling worth is given high recognition in the theatrical world.

It is a pleasure to see the Jewett Players in a play of this calibre, for here they have ample room for the ensemble that English so that all the characters may distinctly understand. The comedy loses none of its flavor and zest in their hands. The result is a whole, the dialogue as droll and incisive, the movement as lively, the personalities are as piquant as ever.

Fred W. Permain is the Sir Peter Teazle of the current production, and he is distinctly at home in the part, having played the same role with Annie Russell in a historic gem cast of silk brocade, made in the Eighteenth Century, for an English gentleman of the period. The beaded bag, an oil portrait a fling ago suddenly infused with life. He gave a sparkling and finished performance.

Lady Teazle is enacted by a newcomer to the Copley, Adelaide Hunter Watts, who made her reputation on the Australian stage. An actress of marked personal attractions, pleasing voice, and much native talent, she has been well schooled, and is a worthy addition to the Jewett ranks.

If Conway Wingfield enacts Charles Surface with his accustomed thoroughness. It is a joy to witness any worth-while part in his hands, for he invariably does it justice. Beatrice Miller, one of the most competent of the Jewett Players, is cast for the role of Mrs. Candour, and she imparts brisk sauce to the piece. N. Murray Stephens as Joseph Surface, Frederick Annerley as Crabtree, Leonard Cooke as Sir Benjamin Backbite, Nicholas Jay as Snake and Cameron Matthews as Sir Oliver, all do marked justice to their parts.

Leon Gordon is just the sort of irrepressible Careless needed to add spice to the comedy. Frances Ingomar as Lady Sneerwell hides her personal attractiveness under clever and convincing masquerade. Miss Doris Sawyer as Maria makes the most of the lines and stage business allotted to her. The entire performance is admirable throughout and a credit to the Copley.

GAIETY THEATRE—Jacobs and Jermon have staged an amusing burlesque which opens in a manner a bit more original than the average show. Just as the first act is getting under way to you would appear in the orchestra and roast the show. They insist that it needs improvement, and when the curtain comes to join the company and show what they can do they hop on to the stage and become the leaders in the fun and laughter. They are Harry K. Morton and Manny Bachler, who do Mortie "Sour Grapes," pacemaker and chief punisher.

They ridicule all the things that Morton either does to himself or is subjected to would exhaust the dictionary of battling terms. He thinks no more of standing on his neck than he does of falling down on one ear. So if you like to see a man gamble with the safety of his own bones you will get a lot of fun out of Morton.

Zella Russell brightens the show with her breezy personality and vocalizes daintily and has her usual pianologue. It is as good as ever, and she won a fine reception yesterday.

GLOBE THEATRE—The second week of "Tarzan of the Apes" began at the Globe Theatre yesterday. This spectacle, the screen version of Edgar Rice Burroughs' story, is an engrossing tale.

"POLLYANNA" IS FULL OF SUNSHINE

"Pollyanna," the play of "good cheer" opened at the Tremont Theatre last night for a limited engagement.

It is universally called the "Glad Play," and the title, to be sure, is not found wanting.

"Pollyanna" is a dramatization of Eleanore H. Porter's stories. It's successes of 1916, when first seen here, was once more repeated last night. Every one was glad to see "Pollyanna, the Glad Girl" back again, for it is, indeed, a play with a rich lesson.

The interpretation of Eleanore Porter's thoughts through the stage did cast, headed by Patricia Collings, is the real feature of the play.

There's plenty of sunshine for everyone.

"Pollyanna" is even glad she has freckles. She says, "Just think, they might have been warts."

Patricia Collings was an ideal "glad girl" and she was most cordially received. She was at all times human, kind, and, best of all, glad. She was even glad her "King" broke his leg. She explains it by saying—"It might have been his neck."

Beatrice Morgan as Polly Harrington, the "glad girl's" aunt, in a most difficult role, did remarkable work. She didn't get glad, however, until the last act.

Oswald Yorke, called "The Hermit," interpreted his role in a masterful manner. Others in the cast who helped to make "Pollyanna" the assured success that it is were: Joseph Jefferson, Mattie Ferguson, Stephen Davis, Helen Weatherby, Glen Hunter, Maud Hosford, Harry Barfoot and Katherine Rober.

Mrs. Porter, the author of "Pollyanna," was present with friends.

BOSTON THEATRE—"The Doctor and the Woman," a photoplay adaption of "K," the famous novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart, and a bill of superb vaudeville brought a record audience to the Boston Theatre yesterday. Devotees of the novels of Mrs. Rinehart could find no fault with the accuracy of the adaption, for it was carried out with perfect detail.

The headline vaudeville attraction was the Robert Henry Hodge company in "Bill Bilthers, Lawyer," a merry melange of music, melody and mirth.

CAR WITH SNAP BIG HELP TO SALESMAN

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

The use of the automobile by commercial houses can no better be illustrated than that of the number of concerns which now employ it as a means of transportation for their territory salesmen.

"And it is no longer a question of any old car, but the big wholesale houses insist that their salesmen drive up to a customer's door in a good-looking machine. As attention is the first step in salesmanship, it sometimes happens that an attractive machine acts as an introduction," says A. J. Shorey, manager of the New England Velie Company.

SETS UP A STANDARD.

"Many houses consider it just as essential for their men to drive good looking cars as it is for their personal appearance and salesmanship to be up to the standard. This is strikingly evidenced by the persistent demand for attractive, low-priced light cars for salesmen.

"The beauty of the new Briscoe, with its 'Half Million Dollar Motor,' has attracted many of the big houses and will attract more because of the price and efficiency. Business people demand twenty-five to thirty miles to the gallon of gasoline, and from 500 to 800 miles to the gallon of oil, and this, together with velvety qualities that conserve the salesman's 'jep' and energy, in addition to low first cost and an appearance that will do justice to big houses.

EASY ON THE RIDER.

"It is particularly necessary that the car a salesman drives does not tire him out. Through the Briscoe's long wheel base, 166 inches, its full elliptic rear springs and the general balance of the car, it is one that a salesman can operate over the country roads all day without fatigue.

"As an instance—the foot pedals operate with the slightest pressure, and one can operate the steering gear between the thumb and the forefinger, if he wishes."

"Farmac" Tires and Tubes Represent a House of Well-Known Reputation

Farley & MacNeil of No. 106 Federal street have recently put on the market "Farmac" tires and tubes, which derive their name from that of the firm. As Mr. MacNeil said recently: "When a concern has been in business as long as we have and has established a reputation for fair dealing, that prestige should be an asset for business and for that reason we have picked out a line of tubes and tires for distribution and are selling them under our trade name of 'Farmac.'

"It is needless to say that our reputation is behind them and we would not do this unless we had absolute confidence in the product. When we sell 'Farmac' tires we're selling the reputation of the firm and that means a whole lot to us and to our customers."

DON'T WRITE GLOOMY LETTERS TO SOLDIERS

Washington, April 23.—Discouraging letters from home to the soldiers in the camps have caused so many desertions that the War Department today sent out a general request to parents and relatives to omit from their correspondence exaggerations of illness, trifling alarms and the small annoyances of every day life. Desertion is a serious military offence and the department warns that it must be met with stern punishment.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

To Properly Treat Obstinate Wrinkles

Particularly where wrinkles are long and deep, the massage device is apt to be too hard and too frequently loosens the skin, causes muscles to sag, aggravates the wrinkled condition—just the opposite result from that sought.

Better than massage, or anything else for the most obstinate wrinkles, as well as the finest lines, is a remarkable cream which you can easily avail yourself of, as you will have no difficulty procuring a few ounces from your druggist. It is this: One ounce powdered saxolite, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathe face, neck and hands in this and it is really marvelous, not only as to wrinkles, but in case of freckles, blotches and skin. The application is cooling and soothing, filling the relaxed tissues full with hazel and the saxolite acts, of course, entirely harmless to the skin.—Advertisement.

OPERA OPENING DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE

All-Star Cast Makes Presentation of "Le Prophete," a Notable Event

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"How was Caruso?"

"He was in splendid form, better than for several years."

"Were there many there?"

"Absolutely packed, my dear. You couldn't have squeezed a sheet of paper in after the audience was assembled."

"Were the dresses lovely? Did you see many people we know?"

"Why, you wouldn't call it a brilliant audience. People seemed to be dressed less ostentatiously than they used to be at the opera. And it looked as though some of our best people waited too long for their tickets, because lots of the orchestra were missing.

"And how did you like the opera?"

That's along the last question, if a woman is asking. They love music but opera is more than that and a musical entertainment afterwards.

A STUNNING CAST.

Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete" was new to almost everybody as the Metropolitan opening last night. Signor Gatti had supplied a very stunning cast, Claudia Muzio, the new lyric star; Margaret Matzenauer, the great contralto; Mardones and Rothier, the celebrated basses, and Caruso himself, the Czar of tenors, and still a long way from being exiled to Siberia.

It was one of those all-star casts that the Metropolitan pulls off so famous for, and not one of these single-star, lob-sided offerings where cheap nonentities make up for the expense of the drawing card.

"Le Prophete" is an old-fashioned opera, full of sound, ripe tunes, big arias and duets, stirring marches and smashing choruses.

BIG PAGEANT SEEN.

It has one tremendous pageant scene, the crowning of John of Leyden, in which the familiar Coronation March occurs. And the climax of the opera, the blowing up of the prophet's palace, rivals the celebrated destruction of the temple by Samson in "Samson et Dalila."

The prophet of this opera is not one of the Hebraic mouthpieces of the Lord, but a false one who arose in the middle ages and founded the Anabaptists. He was called John of Leyden.

Scribe, the librettist, arranged the tale as follows:

John, an innkeeper, is robbed of his sweetheart by a nobleman, Count of Oberthal. The Count makes a bid to John her lover, but the Count secures possession of Fodoa, John's fiancee, and by threatening her with death forces him to give up his sweetheart. Mad with rage against the lord and lawlessness of the nobles, John joins the Anabaptists, a sect of religious fanatics, pledged to destroy the powers that be. He soon becomes their leader and prophet, and captures the city of Munster.

In the Cathedral he is crowned son of God by his followers. Meanwhile his mother has been searching for her son and recognizing him as the prophet. She rushes forward, but he disowns her, fearing to admit an earthly relationship would mar his credulity of his followers.

The old woman is married off to Jaln. John repents, of course, and visits her in her cell, obtaining her pardon by promising to renounce his false splendor and fly with her. But in the last act, finding himself about to be the victim of a plot of the Anabaptist leaders he blows up his palace, destroying himself and the others with him.

IS LENTHY OPERA.

Like "The Huguenots," "Le Prophete" is a very long opera. It started promptly at 7:30 and was still churning away at 11:30 p. m.

Its many scenes were painted by Joseph Urban and these greatly aided the fine impression made by the opera.

The music of "The Prophet" is far better than the libretto. The orchestration is quite ornate for the period and the composer never had a melodic inspiration than in this work. There are two or three beautiful airs for Caruso which he sang with the best taste and stunning effect. The great tenor seemed a bit thinner than of yore, but perhaps the costumes favored him.

Claudia Muzio made a very favorable impression for a first appearance. Her voice is sympathetic, pure and sweet and she sings with rare grace and charm.

Matzenauer, also, pleased in her solo numbers and in the duets with the soprano and tenor. This artiste has one top note which is too much like a steam whistle to charm me, but her lower and middle registers are particularly rich and mellow.

It was a pleasure to hear the sonorous basso of Mardones, the old Boston opera favorite, and also to hear the tenor of Raphael Diaz, another survivor of Henry Russell's company, in an important role.

A very pretty ice ballet, headed by Rosina Galli, with Adolfo Appollon, a one-half pint with hazel, Bathe face, neck and hands in this and it is really marvelous, not only as to wrinkles, but in case of freckles, blotches and skin. The application is cooling and soothing, filling the relaxed tissues full with hazel and the saxolite acts, of course, entirely harmless to the skin.—Advertisement.

The audience was a notable one, appeared to be enshrouding the dancers lighted up the evening very much.

Tonight the opera is "Tosca," with Farrar, McCormack and Scotti.

SOCIETY WELL REPRESENTED AT OPERA

Brilliantly Gowned Assemblage Occupies Orchestra Seats and Boxes

Society was well represented at the opening of the brief opera season. Mayor Peters was in a box, and among his guests was his mother, who wore black satin and jetted lace. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pitman were of a box party with Mr. George Rublee, Mrs. Pitman, of the many, wearing black.

A prominent party occupying orchestra stalls was that brought by Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Fabyan, including their daughter, Mrs. William Augustus Read, Jr., of New York, and Miss Anna Agassiz. Mrs. Fabyan was in black satin, Mrs. Read in black velvet, and Miss Agassiz in ivory-colored velvet with pailletted tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley B. Fay had with them their son, Mr. Arthur Dudley Fay and Mrs. Fay's sister, Miss George Lowle. Mrs. Fay was in black satin, the overdress of lace wrought in gold, and Miss Lewis in old rose satin and chiffon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Burnham had with them the latter's sister, Miss Lucretia Heckscher of Philadelphia, who was in black satin almost covered with cut steel paillettes. Mrs. Burnham's gown was of turquoise taffeta partially veiled with tulle.

Mrs. Arthur Little who was with Mr. Little, wore royal purple satin, the overdress of tulle pailletted in the same tone. Mrs. Little's guests included

UNITARIAN FOR CHURCH UNITY AND VICTORY

Sunday. Dr. Saunderson made a statement today, but with the final qualification that it was not a reply to the reported attitude of Dr. Myers. Dr. Saunderson said:

"We believe that the present is no time to magnify denominational or sectarian differences. All the energies of every church ought to be centred on the winning of the war.

"All households of faith should be engaged in promoting Christian unity and in emphasizing their common affirmations instead of emphasizing their differences.

"During the past Winter Unitarians have met with their brethren of evangelical and orthodox traditions and we know, and nothing but good has come out of these friendly associations which commenced as fuel conservation measures.

"From these joint services of worship great good has come and denominational lines have in many instances been nearly, if not quite, obliterated. Such fellowship among Christian brethren is wise and right. Therefore any revival of sectarianism is to be regretted and must be opposed by every friend of Christian unity and religious progress.

"As Unitarians we shall make no public response to the reported attitude of Dr. Myers. Such a reply is entirely uncalled for and, so far as we are concerned, ill-timed and superfluous."

BRITISH JAWS SET TO WIN, SAYS CURATE

"People who believe that this is going to be an easily won war must resist their ease," declared Rev. John Higginson Cabot, curate of the Church of the Advent, Brimmer street, following his arrival today from a five months' sojourn in England as a Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. observer.

"We will win the war, but it will be no cinch. The British people are not worry, it is true, but their determination to win is matched by their optimism, optimism.

"The difference between the English resist the greater the cheerfulness of the civilized people. Only when things go wrong for a long period is grumbling at all evident."

Mr. Cabot's mission was commissioned by the American government to extend its observations in France, but his trip, through the offensive beginning March 21 made it necessary to forbid all civilians from crossing to France for several weeks. All limits between England and the mainland of Europe were commandeered for the transportation of troops.

NEAR WHEN BOMB LANDED.

More than a dozen air raids took place while Mr. Cabot was resident in Chester square, London, S. W.

Once he was within 300 yards of the spot where a German bomb landed, demolishing four houses and killing thirty people. The concussion from the explosion was such that he was nearly knocked down.

Discussing war-time conditions in London, Mr. Cabot said:

"Meat is all under a rationing system. You are allowed four coupons a week. The weekly ration of meat is less than a pound per person.

"Milk as a beverage is not permitted to adults. Even the farmers are not allowed to drink their own milk and kill their own swine. Everything produced on the farms has to be distributed through the organized channels. No matter how much money you may possess, you cannot live any better than the poorest mechanic. Everybody—rich and poor—eats the same food now. Fish is the commonest substitute for meat. Yet the people of England are not starving in any sense of the word.

NO MEAT FOR ROYALTY.

"I dined with the Duke of Argyll, a nephew of Queen Victoria, who told me that he hadn't tasted any meat for six weeks. He said that he had voluntarily given up all meat-eating for the duration of the war. The British royal people are only permitted to spend twenty-five cents a week for meat.

"I visited the largest naval base in the world. The precise situation of this base I was forbidden to disclose. There I visited the warships Lion and Tiger, which the imperial German government declared were sunk by the Germany navy in an engagement of Jutland and Heligoland. They are engaged in an unpleasant task of twenty-six miles. There the British government is building a super-super dreadnaught, which will be the largest and fastest battleship afloat. In size this vessel will rank with the largest ocean liners.

"On a certain munition factory I visited I saw 4,000 women in overalls, busily engaged in furnishing ammunition for the guns which are right now holding off barbarism on the Picardy front. English women workers are a robust, healthy-looking lot. They appear to be well fed and contented in spite of the fact that practically every one of them has lost a son, husband, sweetheart or brother.

"No one wears mourning in England and more. Such fashions are depressing and unpopular, besides being expensive. Everybody tries to be as cheerful and to forget the war as much as it is humanly possible.

"The most wonderful part of the work being done in England is the rehabilitation of the blinded, crippled and wounded soldiers. The work of facial reconstruction to conceal facial disfigurements is little short of marvellous. Some of the frightful injuries one sees make one faint and nauseated, but one soon becomes accustomed to such sights and, after that, can stand almost anything.

FIND MISSING GIRL'S TRUNKS IN CELLAR

By International News Service.

Royal Oak, Mich., April 23.—Helmuth Schmidt has been arrested at his home here, charged with first degree murder in connection with the disappearance on February 11, 1917, of Miss Augusta Steibach, thirty-nine, of New York.

Mrs. Schmidt and their daughter Gertrude, who works in an industrial plant at Detroit, are also held to be sought by the police.

Miss Steinbach answered a matrimonial advertisement and became engaged to a Herman Neugebauer, who, the police say, was Schmidt. She had about $500 and considerable jewelry when she met her fiance in Detroit by appointment. Her trunks were sent here and she left the Detroit rooming house to be married. She was not seen again.

Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington, proprietors of the rooming house, came here to hand the bride personally some wedding presents which had arrived from New York. Mrs. Schmidt met them and denied knowing Miss Steibach.

Recently Federal agents visited the Schmidt home seeking German propaganda evidence. They uncovered Miss Steibach's trunks in the cellar, it was stated. Schmidt's arrest today was the result.

WOULD SILENCE WOMAN CALLING HIM 'HUSBAND'

Lieutenant Angus G. Walden of the United States Army Reserve Corps today filed a bill of equity in East Cambridge Court, asking that Maisie A. Anderson of Ayer be restrained from telling military men at Camp Devens, where he is located, that he is her husband. In the bill, which is returnable in Boston on Tuesday, April 30, Lieutenant Walden states that the woman is not and never was his wife.

He further states in the bill that he has been connected with the United States army for eighteen years; that the Anderson woman has repeatedly and to his annoyance made false statements that she is his wife, and that it is her intention to bring about his dismissal from the army, with loss of pay and allowances.

The document tells of the many indignities borne by Lieutenant Walden as a consequence of the woman circulating stories about him. He wants the court to restrain her from mentioning his name to officers and others.

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out?" Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out" uncared feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Advertisement.

SOX-YANKS IN FINAL BATTLE

Boston Boys Ready for First of Games Abroad; Series With the Mackmen on Slate

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Red Sox 1918 machine, after a thorough test on the home track, departs out onto alien courses, after taking a final fling at the Yankees today up at the Fens. Even though another defeat be sustained, which does not seem probable in the light of recent events, the Barrows outfit will head for the far parts with a splendid record behind it and enough confidence stored away to make opposition equally futile as it has been here.

While the team is not yet built up as Manager Barrows wishes it to be, it's a pretty nifty looking piece of goods already, and will be much niftier after a few good substitutes have been collected.

Collections along that line, however, are very difficult these days. The little leagues haven't started yet, so no new stars have blazed in the baseball skies. And the good men in the game have all been attached to big league teams.

BUSY DAYS FOR AGNEW.

The Barrows scouts are working on several propositions which are calculated to help matters along some. Another good outfielder and one more infielder are a positive necessity.

While Wallie Schang can fill in fairly well, he is not nearly as valuable as a utility performer as he would be catching.

Then, too, there always looms the possibility that Wallie may have to go a flock of catching, provided anything happens to peppery Stanley Agnew.

Siam has caught all the Sox games thus far and its a moral cinch that he'll need a rest soon, provided he does not happen to stick one of his fingers into a foul tip or something like that.

The Barrows reserve pitching strength has not as yet had its test, the appearance of Sam Jones yesterday being the late in the year debut of the season of the ball game.

With the exception of one inning, Sam managed to fool his mates fairly well, but then they didn't have any special cause for hurrying.

Ruth, Joe Bush was called to do the hurling in the farewell appearance, and was fated to meet the same opposition he overcame so far this base morning, to wit, Alan Russell.

Huggins is anxious to have Caldwell get into the going, but is not willing to take a chance while the big fellow's arm is trobbling as soon as the efficient Ray says the word, he'll be sent out once more. There was an outside chance that today would be the day.

The foundation, as well as the process of maturing Cooks, is right—great, luscious grapes which are raised just for this one purpose of making champagne of a superior flavor. You'll like Cook's Imperial for its purity, tongue nipping life and exquisite bouquet

LIFE AND BATTLES OF TERRY McGOVERN

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

This is the first chapter of a series of six articles which Mr. Corbett is writing on the pugilistic life of Terry McGovern. The next instalment will appear tomorrow.

Gameness, bulldog courage, aggressiveness—those are the qualities in a fistic performer that are so genuinely loved and admired by fight fans. And because Terry McGovern possessed each in abundance he won a place in the heart of fandom that will endure for all time.

"Terry the Terrible" they called him—and terrible he was in action. No fighter before his day—or since—ever was a ring fury like McGovern.

He possessed science and skill, but he rarely resorted to them. He knew his own speed, his endurance powers and his punching skill. So he fought his battles with only one real thought in mind, to batter down his foe in the shortest time possible.

Terry was born in Johnstown, Pa., March 9, 1880, and began his ring career in 1897. Right from the outset he showed absolutely no fear of any man in his division—or out of it.

Novice though he was, he gladly battled any warrior who cared to try conclusions with him. He went through 1897 without suffering defeat, winning 12 of 14 bouts, the other two resulting in draws.

PROUD RECORD IN RING.

In 1898 Terry decided that whirlwind aggressiveness was the vital asset for ring success. And so he began to develop his famous "left hook to the head" punch and to perfect his rushing tactics.

It was in that year, also, he fattened eight formidable foes, including George Munroe, Harry Forbes and Fred Mays that he came to be called "Terrible Terry."

Through 1899 his knockout record was phenomenal. He put fifteen foes to sleep, knocking out four of his victims in the first round, battering four others in two rounds, while two more lasted less than three full rounds.

Through 1897, 1898 and 1899—his first three years in the ring game—Terry fought forty-six battles. He won twenty-three with knockouts, seventeen on decision, one on foul, and fought four to a draw. He lost but once—and then on a foul—to Jim Callahan in eleven rounds in 1898.

The best illustration of Terry and his style is furnished in the story of his battle with Pedlar Palmer, the great English bantam.

Terry had whipped every prominent bantam in the country and was generally recognized as the champion of that division, owing to the retirement of Jimmy Barry, the real champion.

But Palmer, who was the English title holder, rose up and disputed the claim of Terry's friends that the American was the real bantamweight king.

MADE QUICK WORK OF PALMER.

"Get me a fight with that Englishman," bayed Terry of his backers.

They did. The two warriors were matched to meet in open air in Tuckahoe, N. Y., September 12, 1899. They weighed in at 118 pounds, but went into the ring weighing 126. McGovern was the betting favorite at odds around 15 to 9. A purse of $10,000 was witnessed the contest.

Palmer had a record, which compared favorably with that of McGovern and was ranked as the fastest man in the bantam division. He was as clever a bantam performer as the game ever produced and he packed a mighty wallop.

The bout was scheduled to go 25 rounds and not even the wildest McGovern partisan cared to wager much on Terry's chance of scoring a knockout.

The Englishman's defence was considered impregnable to a sleep watch.

But Terry McGovern was a winner via the knockout route before the first round had ended.

Palmer felt confident of victory. Before the battle he boasted that through a careful study of Terry's tactics he had perfected a defence that would turn aside every McGovern onslaught.

He figured to beat Terry at his own game—to rush the American with the tap of the first gong and to batter him down with a fusillade of punches. But his plan failed.

TERRY SETS HOT PACE

The echo of the first bell hadn't died away before Palmer was on top of Terry, swinging lefts and rights. The Briton's rushing tactics surprised Terry, and for the first ten seconds or so he continued to back away, meanwhile studying his foe. Once more Palmer rushed, stumbled a bit, and then Terry was on him.

Like an enraged lion the American hurled himself toward Palmer, both hands swinging like flails. The blows came so fast and so furiously that Palmer, appalled and confused, staggered back. He simply couldn't get out of them.

He tried several times to back to sidestep, but always Terry was on him, sending crashing lefts and rights to the head and body.

Palmer tried to halt the terrific McGovern with jabs on the face. But Terry, keyed after the most terrible blow after another struck his target, and it looked as if every new punch would be the last.

It didn't seem humanly possible for a man to stand up under even the cyclonic McGovern attack.

A solid right landed on Harry Pedlar's jaw. He staggered and the answer the call of the fighting blood road, the ring of the bell was heard.

But the round wasn't over. The timekeeper had struck the half error.

ROUND CUT SHORT BY MISTAKE.

Just the same the milling crowd and Palmer dragged himself to his corner. But hardly had he sat down when George Siler, the referee, discovered that the round had gone only two minutes instead of the other sixty seconds of fighting was left. So he ordered the fighting be resumed.

Palmer came out of his corner unsteadily. Terry came at him in a jump. For ten seconds or so the Britton dodged or blocked the heavy McGovern leads.

But a left hook came too fast to dodge. It shot to the point of the chin—and down went Palmer. He arose at the count of six only to be met by another volley of blows.

Shifting the attack from head to body and then back to the head again, Terry hammered out the last bit of strength in the wiry Britton's body.

Then "Terrible Terry" stood and measured Palmer and let go a terrible right-hander to the jaw. Palmer collapsed—and Terry McGovern became the undisputed bantamweight champion of the world.

TENDLER RULES 10-2 FAVORITE OVER BRITT

CARD AT ARMORY A. A.

Main Bout—Lew Tendler of Philadelphia vs. Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford; twelve rounds.

Semi-Final—Johnny Buckley of South Boston vs. Young Chakas of Manchester, N. H.; ten rounds.

Second Preliminary—Panama Joe Lima vs. Battling Thomas of Chicago; six rounds.

Curtain-Raiser—Freddie Webb of Weymouth vs. Frank Toronto of Dorchester; six rounds.

Referees—Matt Hinkel (main bout); Larry Conley and Matt Flaherty.

Starting Time—8 p. m.

By J. P. MURPHY

Lew Tendler of Philadelphia will rule a 10 to 2 favorite over Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford, in the feature twelve-round scrap at the Arena tonight.

The fistic fraternity figures that Tendler will romp home an easy winner, repeating his performance of last Fall, when he outlasted Britt when they collided at Braintree.

Wagers of 100 to 20 were offered early today on Tendler with no takers. It is evident, therefore, that the shore-enders want a better price and from where we sit it looks as though 10 to 2 will be the figure at post-time.

Whether or not the struggle rules will be one of any length is a question that the local scouts will unravel. Some think that Britt, basing their opinion on the fact that Tendler is a natural born scrapper and has added the gab trade lot as good as Britt.

The boys have contracted to weigh in at 134 pounds at ringside. The poundage, however, will hardly cut any figure, as both youths are light fighting weights at best and will go into the ring in the vicinity of the mark.

Matt Hinkel of Cleveland will be the third man in the ring. Tendler has chosen an old-time referee and Matt was a favorite with him.

Larry Conley, New York boxing commissioner, has also been named referee by Britt's manager. Each is a great booster for Hinkel, believing him to be one of the most capable arbitrators in the country.

Be that as it may, we still stick to our opinion that local referees should decide local bouts, no matter how big they may be, and no club should let a boxer, local or otherwise, dictate terms. To let one boxer have his say is to ignore the other.

We'd hate to say what would happen to Britt if he were hemmed in here in Philadelphia and insisted on Larry Conley as referee. Then why should Tendler be allowed to name his own official in Boston?

Reagan and Sacco Put Up Rollicking Draw at Chelsea; Paul Demers Beats Pavese

The famous Knan Bedlow feud, nearer settlement today than it was a month ago, Tommy Reagan and Young Sacco, principal contestants in said feud, boxed twelve rounds to a draw before the members of the roughly A. C. Chelsea, and there is talk of rematching the pair for another engagement at the same institution.

From the start Reagan seemed bent on letting Sacco set the pace and, although he succeeded to some extent, his plan did not work out as well as he had hoped. So after the latter had piled up a slight snade in the first quarter, Tommy got busy, changed his plan of battle and decided to take the aggressive himself. Paul Demers, bantamweight champion, defeated Danny Pavese of New York in the ten-round semi-final, while Bunny O'Neil of Lynn earned the decision over Frank Chaney of Revere in the opening bout in six rounds.

Sam Campos of Spain and Eddie Egan, Peabody veteran, who were scheduled to box in the second preliminary, both reported ill, and the bout was declared off.

FINE THROW BY YOUNG BEATS BRAVES, 4-2

Cuts Herzog Down at Third When Koney Bingles in Pinch —Burns' Homer a Settler

By SAM CRANE

New York, April 23.—Charley Herzog had the chance of his young life to distinguish himself when he came to bat in the ninth inning, with two braves on bases and two out, in the game at the Polo grounds.

A home run would have put his team ahead and might have brought a last inning victory to the Boston club. But luck was not with Charley, for after two hard, but futile, swipes at Tesreau's speedy shoots, he lifted an easy fly to Dennis Kauff and the Giants won the series of their fifth straight game, 4 to 2.

It was a tough struggle though from the end of the second inning to the last half of the eighth, when Heinie Heine lined a home run into the lower section of the right field grand stand that sent Kauff home with the run that broke the tie at two runs each, which had existed since the close of the No. 2 session.

It was in the very first inning that the Braves had their chance to score on the victory, and, by far the most hard luck, they would probably remember.

They started off on Jess Barnes as if they were out for a slaughter, in which they succeeded in knocking the ex-Braves pitcher out of the box before one of their own men had been retired. Maranville hit by a hot grounder from Herzog's bat, and stayed on first base safely.

The third inning looked dangerous for, when Herzog, who was the first batter up, walked. After Powell pushed a fly out to Young, Konetchy shot a wicked single to right, which Young fumbled and as a result of his, and by a splendidly accurate throw to Rousch, loaded the bases at third.

The Giants and Braves were scheduled to play a double header today, the game of the present series this afternoon.

NAVY YARD NINE HAS DISBANDED, IS REPORT

Evidently the Boston Navy Yard baseball team, which Black Jack Barry was going to captain, and which was going to include a lot of old stars, including Tris Speaker, Marysville Pat Gainer, Jimmy Walsh, Herb Pennock, King Bader, Mike Menosky, Doc Hale, Babe Ruth, Ernie and Whitey Witt, is not going to take the field.

Rumor has it that the nine has been "silently" disbanded, the officials of the Navy Yard thinking there's more valuable work ahead for the boys than to play ball. The Navy Yard team was scheduled to play Dalton College today, but the game has been called off.

N. E. COLLEGES OUT TO PASS UP PRO. TUTORS

Middletown, Ct., April 23.—The college presidents of New England are to meet at the Harvard Club, Boston, Saturday, upon invitation of President Hyde of Bowdoin, to discuss paid professional coaching for college athletic teams.

The fact has become known that the Eastern colleges to drop their professional tutors and turn the work over to graduate men will be urged.

It is to form some plans whereby, if not all, at least the majority can be kept from drifting back to the old method of professional coaching that has proved such a failure.

SUGGESTS BANK POOL TO PURCHASE LIBERTY BONDS

New York, April 23.—Bernard M. Marcus, chairman of the Liberty Loan committee of the Federal Reserve district of the Bank of the United States, went to Washington today to present a plan devised by Secretary McAdoo a plan to curb Liberty Bond sacrifices and to maintain the bonds at par. His suggestion is that the banks of the country form a pool for the purchase of Liberty Bonds at par, plus accrued interest, thus obviating the necessity of holders having deal with brokers when in straightened circumstances.

A Good Time to Look at Mars

MARS, now shining ruddily on the hindquarters of the celestial lion, Leo, crosses the meridian at 9 p. m. This is a favorable time to look at the northern polar snow cap. You can also see some of the dark shades on the planet, but not the "canals."

OLD FASHION DINNERS

Loretto Lynch Tells How to Utilize the Chicken

By Loretto C. Lynch

Instructor War Cookery, New York Evening High School for Women

SO many housewives feel that they want to cook and serve a particularly attractive dinner and yet keep within the food administration's rules. Perhaps you wish to have a real "homey" dinner for that boy home on furlough for a day. Then by all means cook an old-fashioned chicken dinner.

Let us suppose you want to make this a Sunday dinner. Then you can do much on Saturday to relieve yourself on Sunday.

First write your menu.

CHICKEN RICE WITH SOUP.
Roast Chicken.
Stuffing. Gravy.
Mashed Potatoes.
Creamed Onions.
Jelly-rolls. Butterine.
Waffles with Honey.
Coffee.

That boy home on furlough has been eating chicken dinners now and then at different places, but the chicken—well, it was called chicken, but—"it was tasteless" So you want to have a particularly good bird. In a chicken or young fowl suitable for roasting the scales on the legs are yellow and soft, and the breastbone is cartilaginous and pliable. Pin feathers indicate a more youthful bird than do the presence of hairs.

Prepare and partly roast your chicken on the day before if you can manage it. It will relieve you of considerable work on the day of the dinner party. Pin feathers should be removed with a knife and hairs may be singed by holding the bird at various angles over a gas or alcohol flame. Or you may use lighted paper on top of the range. Next remove the tendons of the legs. To accomplish this, bend the leg back to stretch the skin over the joint. Cut carefully through the skin and break the joint. Slip a knitting needle or skewer under one tendon at a time and pull them out. Break off the feet with the loose tendons.

There are various ways of drawing a bird. Some organs, however, are overlooked by housekeepers and not removed. To those it is well to direct a little attention. The rather bright red, spongy substance is the lungs or part of them. These should be entirely removed from the chest wall. The kidneys lie in two hollows near the end of the backbone. These should be removed. Cut off the oil bag down near the tail on the outside.

Run Water Through.

Push the skin of the neck down and cut off the neck. Save the neck. The skin may be folded over and sewed just before stuffing

Run water through the cleaned body and wipe it with a damp cloth, both inside and out. Cut off the tips of the wings. Remove the inner sac from the gizzard. After cleaning pull liver, heart, gizzard, wings and neck into a soup pot, and cut into small pieces, cover with cold water and a little salt and half a sliced onion, and simmer until the neck meat is very tender.

It will form the basis for a nice chicken and rice soup. Prepare a stuffing for the chicken. The following is about right for a three or four pounder;

Stuffing — Bread crumbs, two cupfuls; sage or poultry seasoning, one teaspoonful; salt one teaspoonful; pepper, one-eighth teaspoonful; butterine or cooked chicken fat, three tablespoonfuls; boiling water, one-third cupful.

Mix thoroughly, and with it stuff the chicken. Sew up the opening and tie the bird into shape with strong cord. Dredge a roasting pan with flour. Grease and flour the chicken. Put it on the pan breast down.

A "roasting saddle" in which to place the bird, breast down, may be purchased for a trifle at any of the better shops. By the laws of gravity, all the fat and juice frequently found in the back of a roast chicken will run down into the usually dry breast.

Let Flour Brown

When the flour in the pan has browned add a cup or more of boiling water and ¼ cup fat. Baste frequently. A four-pound chicken should roast from one to one and one-half hours.

Strain and thicken with cornstarch (sour the liquid in the pan. Season and serve with the chicken.

Select small white onions for creaming.

Here is a good waffle recipe suited to the times: One cup potato flour, 1½ cups wheat flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 cups thick sour milk, 3 eggs, ½ cup melted fat. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Mix the beaten yolks of the eggs with the sour milk and stir it into the dry ingredients. Add melted fat and lastly whites of eggs beaten dry.

Have waffle iron hot and well oiled. Put a spoonful in each compartment and let down the cover. When the mixture is baked on one side, turn the iron and brown the other side. Remove waffles with a fork. The large amount of fat in the batter prevents "sticking."

From Puck

"He sat down in a vacant chair," relates a magazine fictionist. It is, everything considered, the safest way. Much of the discord in the world has been caused by gentlemen—and ladies as well—who sat down in chairs already occupied.

Creamed Tripe

Soak one pound of tripe over night. Cut in small pieces, put in cold water, boil until tender. Add one onion cut in small pieces, strain and cover with white sauce or cream sauce.

Spring Millinery

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

ONCE it was all flowers of rainbow hues, a thing of pleated ribbons, or golden straw perhaps, or maybe rose chiffon with an orchid above the violet eye of a siren Summer girl; or maybe a spunky white "pull down" on the hair of a jolly comrade; or maybe a burnished black hat with a tall, piratical plume spike above the raven hair of the girl who leans white elbows on the tables of "Summer roofs." Now it means more than just a lady's April bonnet! It means that and more, too. It means —this Spring millinery—in serviceable words, a "serviceable" bonnet. For on its snowwhiteness, somehow—to be beautiful and right—it must have the words "I Serve!" For Uncle Sam and us—we are going out to meet a foe on their way to us—and our maids and men are marked with the fashion of our going.

Jim's and Bill's and Jack's Spring millinery is a soft dusky-gold-gray. Just a broad-brimmed hat with a brilliant little cord of one color or another around its crown that stands up dimpled, in plainness, campaign, American fashion. A fellow's keen, clear gray eyes look well from under—so his women folks say to him and me and you. There's another as "proper" for Jim and Bill and Jack, whose clean-cut outline sits trimly on a close-cropped head and calls aloud, in its blue like the star-spangled blue of the flag, "I serve!"

Lil' ole Pete—just anybody's little old Pete or Pat, too young to fight—he wears a rumpled soldier coat and a military cap on his bobbed hair and his eyes are sober and grave under its tilted edge. And his fat, grubby hands kiss its brim in salute to the rippling, streaming flag reaches already into his baby breast and quivers and ruffles there. Betty and Babette and Janette and Barbara are shouldering along under the cocky sit of a Glengarry, aviator-wise on their smooth hair or curly.

Old Dan, I betcha, has a steel trench helmet along with the rest of the boys at the front. Because he's there, too. Men have carried him in their hearts, and these are terrific days and pretty hard cracks for Daniel.

And SOLDIER-MOTHERS—are you seeing theirs? The radiant, rosy, gleaming, glittering, shimmering thing that trembles above their heads! Just a saint's halo is all—nothing less. With a light raying 'round it that matches the lamp in their eyes.

Walk through Madame Fashion's shop—peer through diamond glass and timidly gaze at models slowly swimming by, search through the bins and flowered boxes, and after you see all the hats she has made for girls this Springtime, Madame will show you with hushing finger on lip and eyes cast up in swooning ecstasy—her loveliest creation for the head of the American belle. You linger it—if you dare. It is a snow-white thing of cloth, like wings. It has no ornament save a vivid cross of heart's-blood crimson, like a glorious wound—the arms of the army of service and succor that burns above the brows of the woman who fights and defeats death, unafraid, and shows the soldier-boy snatched from the shadow of his wings, the sane, sweet beauty of a smile on a woman's face! It hides the hair, save a feathery feminine frame of it, and spreads like the saint-wings either side of face and shoulder. It is very like a wimple —or the gentle nun's coif.

A Home, Every Girl's Right

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN Washington, D. C., there is a woman wise in her generation.

She is Mrs. Alexander E. Williams, wife of a lieutenant-colonel in the United States army. She realized as soon as girls began to pour into the national capital to do war work for the government how necessary it was for them to have real homes.

She planned for them, not hall bedrooms in which to snatch a few hours necessary sleep before going to work again, but genuine hearthstones. Here around a big table there would be good meals, with talk and fun and girlish chatter about "the department," Spring hats, or the last letter from "back home."

All of these things, instead of a stool at some wretched lunch-counter, unappetising food, with the horrors of a solitary dinner and the bleak return to the hall bedroom again.

Out of her own pocket Mrs. Williams financed this scheme; there were seven houses in the beginning —by this time there are probably more—and now they are all on a paying basis.

In addition to managing the houses Mrs. Williams has prevailed on Washington people who could spare the room to accept, on a family footing, about five hundred additional girls. She accepted no offers where the householders would not agree to accept the war workers on this family basis.

No Work More Patriotic

In every case she secured references from the home towns of the girls, and of the hundreds who secured rooms only two were unable to furnish vouchers of good conduct.

No more patriotic work could have been undertaken than that of finding homes for girls who are doing the clerical work of the country at this time. For the plight of a girl without a home is that of a mariner without a compass.

Not always do parents with daughters realize the necessity of this haven for a girl. The home is too often the place where she eats and sleeps, not the place where she sees her friends and talks out her daily problems.

This is especially true of the homes of our less prosperous citizens; the struggle to keep things going is so great that any extra pound of pressure—in the way of company—is not to be considered.

The already overworked mother does not see how she can do anything more; the ruinous cost of everything, the difficulty of receiving strangers in a home where younger children keep things disordered, too often absorb the mother's attention to the exclusion of the claims of her grown-up daughters' sacred rights.

The girl, young and full of the great of enjoyment, seeks her social life outside of her home; mother and daughter grow apart, even if there are not more serious consequences to this unfortunate arrangement.

No matter how humble, the proper background of a girl is her home; there are her people, there her friends should be welcome, and there she should have the best times her scant leisure will permit.

Fathers and mothers sin more deeply against their daughters than they realize when, through indifference or ungraciousness to their daughters' friends, they drive the girl to go somewhere else for her little pleasures.

Half the tragedies that overtake girls begin with this statement: "I began meeting him out, because I couldn't see him at home."

This is even true of the girl whose daily worn and weekly pay envelope help to keep the home going. The mother works so hard all day long that she added burden of "fixing up for company" is the last straw.

She can no longer recall the temptations of her own youth, the struggle of making both ends meet has blunted her finer perceptions. She has forgotten that life calls and beckons from without, when those within the home grow forgetful of the claim of youth.

And sometimes the mother is not at fault, she is willing to accept the responsibility of "Mary's beau" or the little group of friends who are coming to the "party." It is the father who is oftener the offender; father, who after his hard day feels that quiet and slippers are his right. Any attempt to curtail these privileges in favor of company he regards as an infringement of his constitutional rights of health, wealth and the pursuit of happiness.

Cannot "Make Things Go"

After repeated and melancholy attempts to "make things go" at home, and attendant humiliations and failures, one of two things is bound to happen. Either the girl goes outside for her fun, with all the danger that that involves, or she becomes dispirited and gives up the attempt to have a normal life. Youth slips away, her chances go by, and there is nothing in store for her but a lonesome old age.

Parents are to blame for their children's unhappiness more often than they realize. To them their children never grow up; they fail to realize those children have inherited the same impulses, aspirations and instincts that are the legacy of the human race.

To the mother the daughter is still the little girl in the white frock and pigtails, and if it is not convenient for daughter to have her little friends call there is no use discussing the matter.

Then sometimes comes the fearful realization that daughter is no longer the little girl in white, but a grown woman, who has been facing her life problem away from home—and the solution has been too much for her.

If parents would only stand together on this vital issue, if father must sit in slippers, there must be some nook or granny in the flat where he can enjoy the privilege undisturbed.

And mother had better let something about the house go, while she helps to make the lemonade and sandwiches and then puts on her best dress to make the company feel welcome.

Jewish Women Indorse Meat Substitute

Following a recent meeting of the local branch of the Council of Jewish Women of Washington, D. C., at which 200 members were present, a practical demonstration of a substitute for meat was given. Mrs. Leon Adler, chairman of the food conservation committee of the Washington Temple, said that the new food aroused intense interest and was well received.

This "new food" was the soya bean, which is of Chinese origin and is used in China and Japan in place of meat. Its cultivation is being taken up in the United States.

According to the food administration, the soya bean is a variety rich in proteids. It is oily, and to be palatable must be free of this oil. After the oil is removed the beans are made into little cakes or are ground into flour. The soya bean can be served in many ways.

Puss in Boots Jr.

WELL, I'm glad to tell you Puss didn't wet his toes at all.

He handed the little mermaid her pearly comb, which she had dropped on the sand in the last story, you remember, and after that she swam away to her island of coral pearl.

"Neigh ho," said Puss to himself, "here I am by the sea and sea waves with nobody to talk to," and he sat down and dug a hole in the sand and then he put his feet in and covered them up. And, oh dear me. All of a sudden a great big tremendous crab crawled up, and before Puss could pull out his feet, that dreadful crab fastened his great claw in Puss Junior's sleeve and tore a hole in it.

Well, sir, it didn't take Puss long to draw his sword and stick the point of it right in the wrist of that Crab King's claw, and then the wicked old crab began to sing a different kind of a song; and the tears came out of his eyes, and his eyelashes were so wet that they got all stuck up with sand, and pretty soon he begged to be let alone.

So the King of the Crabs crawled off into the salt sea grass and pretty soon he came back with a little coat, made of sea silk.

And then the Crab King handed it to Puss, and after that he crawled away, for he wanted to go to the doctor to have his elbow fixed, I guess. So Puss put on the coat and resumed his journey of adventure, and what happened after this you shall hear in the next story.

MARRIED LIFE

Helen Resists Opening a Letter and Gets Her Reward

Copyright, 1918, International News Service.

"HERE, Mary, come and help me, will you? I'm going to clear out this hall closet this morning."

Mary came obediently at Helen's request and held out her arms for the old clothes as Helen gave them to her.

"Heavens!" as a cloud of dust whirled out and two or three moths circled around, "I do believe this closet is full of moths. I've been going to clear it out for ever so long, Mary, when have you swept in here?"

Mary answered evasively and Helen drew her own conclusions. Mary, no doubt, had let the closet go, for the dust had collected thick on the floor in the corners, and the shelves were gray with the powdery settlement.

"Here's an old suit of Mr. Carlin." Helen went on, thinking it best not to reprove the girl this time for her neglect. It was not often that Mary needed a reproof; she was quite the best maid Helen had ever had. "Take this and shake it out, will you, Mary; it looks like quite a good suit. Here, wait a minute; I'll see if there is anything in any of the pockets."

Helen slipped her fingers into one pocket after another, and brought to light a handkerchief, some cigarette papers, a crushed cigar and some other things. She was just about to hand the suit over to Mary when she felt something crackle in the inside pocket of the vest. The next minute she drew out a letter.

Her face flushed as she saw that it was a letter in a lavender envelope and in the handwriting that was no doubt a woman's, but she controlled her curiosity as she turned to Mary with the vest. "There, you can take them all out now. Bring back a broom and a dustpan and get up some of this dust, too."

Remembered Novels.

Mary left the room and Helen was about to draw the letter from the envelope when something checked her. Was she so jealous of Warren that she did not trust him? What was she thinking when that quick suspicion had leaped to her mind? She had not believed herself capable of such a feeling. Long ago she had decided never to be jealous of Warren again. It was somehow such a deliberate confession of weakness.

She thought over the situations of this kind she had read of in novels. Always there was a discovery on the part of the righteous wife which led eventually to either an acceptance of the fact that her husband was no longer faithful to her or a separation. Now that Helen was actually faced with such a problem, her brave show of independence faded somewhat. She wondered desperately just what she would do, if she took the letter out of its envelope and discovered something terrible in its contents.

She closed his coming almost perfectly and was in her room arranging her hair when his key clicked in the lock.

"Hello," he called from the hall.

"Hello, dear, I'm in here," and then, as he appeared in the doorway, "How is everything?"

"Fine," he said, coming over to drop a kiss on the top of her head, and then, just as she had known he would do, he went over to his chiffonier and spied the envelope.

"Hello," he ejaculated, "what's this?"

In an Old Suit

"I found it in the pocket of an old suit of yours," Helen remarked, her heart beating fast.

"And I suppose you know the contents backward," Warren returned.

"I haven't looked at the contents." Helen said hurriedly.

"What? Do you mean to tell me that you have allowed this letter to remain there all day long without taking a peek inside?" He was looking at her as though he could not believe his ears.

Helen nodded, and Warren knew it, so that when she shook her head he looked still more amazed.

"Well," he said finally, "all I have to say is, that such strength of character should not go unrewarded. Here it is, dear, you see, it's not from a vampire or anything like that, if she does use lavender paper. I'm giving you action for funds from the church. I don't see why I ever kept it."

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

A safe, reliable home-treatment for the quick removal of superfluous hairs from your face or neck is as follows: Mix a stiff paste with some water and powdered delatone, apply to objectionable hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This simple treatment is unfailing and no pain or inconvenience attends its use, but to avoid disappointment be certain you get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, TUESDAY, APRIL 23, 1918 — LIBERTY

MET HIS FATE UNDER FIRE IN MEXICO

By PAUL F. WHELTON.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, April 23.—A story regarding a sailor who met a girl in Mexico, while under fire, and married her some time later in Salem, Mass., has many possibilities—as a story. That is precisely what occurred in the lives of F. S. Blanchette, baker, second class, at present stationed aboard the receiving ship at Commonwealth Pier, and Miss Mary Murphy of No. 19 Essex street, Salem.

When the United States sailors got in an to the scene of the Mexican disorder centering around Vera Cruz Blanchard Blanchette was a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Virginia when she landed once at Tampico. At this point Blanchette meets the girl who was tucked away in the home of a relative in Tampico. Becoming more or less chummy, according to the Blanchette story, with Miss Murphy, Chief H. C. Monroe's snuffing to the U. S. A. aboard the receiving ship appeared reinforcement again took place.

Before the Virginia pulled away from Tampico Miss Murphy and sailor friend Blanchette were officially engaged and spend a not inconsiderable amount of time in the "movies" and at dances which happens also to be Blanchard Blanchette's home town, so that when the Virginia returned she was ordered and routed between the U. S. S. Virginia and Salem, and subsequent scenes in the play are laid in the historic White City and when Blanchette was finally detached from serving ship he hid his grips at satisfaction behind his open hand and hit the high spots for Salem.

Last week Miss Murphy and Blanchard Blanchette decided, with the consent of having really heard, the ecclesiastical words that sent them on their way on a wife's way.

The Hoffman boilers, E4 and E5, are making a stir in their respective organizations' baseball circles, as the tremely lanky drummer in a janitor band and for the most valuable of dance hall bonfers, have begun to break all records for popularity.

The inevitable Kendall has overtaken Chief Yeoman Fallen and, with a willingness that amounts to a fault, is single-handedly trying to atone. The chief yeoman recently "faded" from the station to pay "I will," a rousing welcome awaits the benefit on his return.

Fort Andrews is scheduled to receive a trimming at the hands of Captain Bill Slack's Battery Island ball tossers, according to the baseball clientele at this station. The Battery Island team was a smashing able performers say the royal rooters are.

STEADY RAIN OF SHELLS AT RANGE

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN.

Camp Devens, April 23.—A steady barrage of shell fire swept across the artillery range and the bursting shells nine tens gapping holes in the land as the range on the far side of the range one after another found its mark.

The officers and men of the 3d battalion of the 52d artillery field artillery regiment practised with the 4.7 Howitzers, but the honor of firing the first shot with the big guns of the battalion fell to Capt. Carl Paulson of the 3d battalion, who comes from Berlin, N. H.

The Howitzers were charged out in the firing point of the heavy artillery for the range and the battalion was carried in some of the new trucks recently received by the 26th ammunition train. Each of the three artillery regiments has its own firing point and practically every artillery unit drawn were at work shells from three inch field guns were screaming over their heads.

The heavy artillery practice is being conducted under the direction of Colonel Archer E. Collins, commander of the 103rd Artillery Regiment, and Brigadier General Peyton C. March, commander of the artillery brigade is also present. Major Gen. Leonard Wood is also present.

Chaplain Chenowith, who is a Methodist, is assigned to the 302nd Field Artillery Regiment. Each chaplain holds the rank of a first lieutenant.

EDITORIAL.

The closing of the rifle ranges to eliminate the possibility of anyone being hit by stray bullets speaks well for the promptness of those in authority at Camp Devens.

The investigation of the accidental shooting of one man of the Depot Brigade who was wounded in the wrist by a bullet which ricochetted from one of the ranges evidently was not handicapped by any of the usual red tape.

The wounding of this man called attention to the danger and may have been the means of saving somebody else from being killed.

The ranges are now being made over, the targets sunk lower and the embankments raised sufficiently to prevent any bullets getting outside, and it is this promptness to correct evils when they endanger the men that is going to make its impression upon the Germans when the 76th Division goes into action.

CAMBRIDGE RECTOR BECOMES A CHAPLAIN

The Rev. Robert M. Pierce of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Cambridge, has resigned and will take up chaplain work at Camp Devens. His address is Hut No. 21, Camp Devens. He will be glad to render any service in his official capacity and answer any inquiries about the "boys" under his immediate charge.

Some Questions From John Conroy

Brief Answers

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

Here are questions from a reader, John Conroy, and answers:

Question—How is the "Alien Slacker Bill" progressing?

Answer—Very nicely—considering.

Question—Why are high-salaried State and city judges exempt from the Income Tax?

Answer—Because when the different States agreed to come in under the Government of the United States they limited the authority of the central government. The United States Government has no authority to put a tax on salaries that are paid by a STATE government.

Question—Who is getting the gravy in the Newark Port shipyards, etc.?

Answer—We do not know. There may not be any "gravy"—which presumably means unfair profit.

Question—Where do all the chief petty officers' appointments come from in the navy, and what are they doing in New York City and Boston by the thousands?

Answer—These appointments are made, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, on merit. There is probably less than one per cent. of favoritism—which is highly creditable.

Do not grudge these men their day off. Leave of absence is strictly regulated.

Be glad that the young men seem happy and cheerful when you see them. They are doing hard work and dangerous work when you do not see them.

Criticism is valuable; it stimulates those in authority.

But confidence in your country and its methods is valuable also, particularly at this time.

Confidence also stimulates those in power, helps them to do their best.

Encourage the Florist

Send Flowers to Your Friends—Especially to YOUR WIFE

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

"Flowers are always fit presents, because they are a proud assertion that a ray of beauty outvalues all the utilities of the world."—Emerson.

A man with plenty of money was heard to say: "Among war economies I have stopped buying flowers." That is a foolish war economy.

Flowers are to the spirit what heat is to the body. The spirit is more important than the body—better save some coal in your furnace and put the money into flowers that will make your children happy, bring spiritual light into your household and give your wife one fewer cause for regret that she married you.

The individual quoted did not say whether he had ceased sending flowers to his wife or some young lady able to hit high C.

Whoever gets the flowers as a present, as Emerson truly says, shows that such a present is a compliment, since it implies that the one to whom the present is given appreciates beauty. When you send flowers, instead of sending something that will last longer, you say with your gift, "These flowers are sent to one in whom the spirit outweighs the body," and that is a compliment.

In a Southern city, an old editor was laid up in a hospital.

In a theatre nearby Maude Adams was acting. She read about the editor, did not know him from any other bald gentleman, but felt sorry for him and sent him some roses.

The editor's secretary, a gay young gentleman, took one of the roses, pressed it carefully, and seemed much delighted to have it. He explained that he was not a victim of footlight fascination.

"I want to take that flower to my wife," said he. "She would rather have me bring her a rose that Maude Adams sent than anything else I could bring her."

A fine compliment to Maude Adams, one that ought to make her glad she sent the flowers to the old man.

An actress whose rose, given in charity, is saved by a dashing young man, who gives it to his wife because the wife so greatly admires the actress, can truly say that she has been playing the right kind of parts and has not worked in vain.

Give useful presents, of course. But also give flowers. If you cannot afford those that are expensive, give those that are cheap. There are all kinds.

The florist whose beautiful shop you pass is to the soul of man and woman what the restaurant keeper is to the stomach.

And the feeding of the soul is as important at least as any other kind of feeding.

BUY FLOWERS.

CARRYING OUT AN ORDER

Are you given to making rules, then beating them into the foreman or whoever is in charge, never afterward giving the matter a second thought to see if the rules are carried out to the letter each day?

What is the good of a rule which is not enforced?

Only by strict enforcement is it determined whether a certain order be effective.

Of course discretion should be used in the formula to be adopted.

Have a reason, definite and unassailable.

Not because so-and-so says so, but because you have been shown conclusively, or know that the rules can be carried out.

You say nearly all men are prone to make mistakes when quick decisions must be made.

True, but habit of mind counts to make quick and accurate decisions. Habit of mind, and experience, and backbone to see that rules are carried to a successful issue are needed all along the line.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX'S ARTICLE

Y. M. C. A. Workers With Our Army in France Are Doing a Most Wonderful Present Work That Is Going to Have Tremendous Influence on the Whole World at the Conclusion of the Conflict, and Those Who Provided the Money Should Be Proud of Helping

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

(Ella Wheeler Wilcox, most famous poetess, who is now in France doing war work, sends the following letter describing her experiences in Paris.)

PARIS, April 3.

SOME months ago there was a request made by the Y. M. C. A. of America for thirty-five million dollars to carry on war relief work. Our country, with its usual liberality, gave more than was asked—it gave fifty million.

All who contributed to that fund may rejoice, for it has been put, and is being put, to wise and wonderful uses.

That fund helped the Y. M. C. A. to establish many canteens and entertainment rooms for our soldiers in America, and it has established three hundred such places in France.

A visit to four of the seven in Paris revealed many interesting facts. These Parisian canteens are in reality hotels for the accommodation of enlisted men and officers obliged to remain in Paris for a time before being sent to the front, and for those who are back on furloughs to rest up and gain new strength for further strenuous attacks on the worst foe to human progress the human race ever encountered.

These canteen hotels are not charities. The men pay for their rooms and their food, but they pay less than one-third the price they would be compelled to pay elsewhere.

The Y. M. C. A. fund makes it possible for these canteens to furnish comforts at less than a nominal price and to provide attendants, who delight in doing everything in their power to brighten the life of the soldier. Entertainments are arranged, reading matter supplied, the help of interested women given and a home atmosphere created, which acts as a moral uplift on the men.

Besides the good done to the soldiers by this Y. M. C. A., there is a reciprocal good done to the Y. M. C. A. men by their close touch with the big issues of life.

The association is occupied in humanitarian and humane enterprises to give the men good care, to build up their bodily health, to distract and entertain them wholesomely during the trying weeks and months of their preparation for war, and to substitute gradually and tactfully right ideals of life for wrong ones, while leaving each man to his own faith.

It is doing a magnificent thing for the race, as well as for the soldiers. And it is laying the foundation of a newer and broader Christianity; a Christianity which will substitute humanitarianism for dogmatism.

It was deeply interesting to find many of these Y. M. C. A. men wide awake on the subject of psychical research; a subject which appeals to suffering humanity over here. The constantly increasing proofs which these researches are giving to sorrow-stricken people of the existence of their dear dead on planes very near to those they love, and of their desire to communicate with them, and their unceasing efforts to comfort and help them, are far more satisfying in this crucial hour than theories which give no comfort to a heart wrung with the anguish of sudden loss.

There have been two exciting air raids here, and the philosophical attitude of mind in which these events are met by both the French and American population is wonderful.

Imagine a thunderstorm in midsummer, increased tenfold and lasting three or four hours, and you have some idea of the sound of an air raid. The fact that much of the thunder is caused by the French defense guns does not greatly mitigate the feeling of awe bordering on fear, which dominates while the raid lasts. Confident of the protection of invisible helpers, and regarding death as the birth of life, I remained in my room the three hours of the first raid since my arrival and wrote letters. During the second, ten ladies, mostly American, gathered in the rooms of the charming wife of a United States Navy paymaster and told incidents and stories of a character which gave a spiritual uplift, while we listened to the booming of sixty airplanes of the enemy of the world and to our defense guns, from 8:40 to midnight.

As we dispersed, one lady remarked that the evening had left her with a feeling that death was indeed a glorious adventure, to be anticipated rather than feared.

Across the street from where I am sitting a French builder is whistling at his work; and in the adjoining room a girl is singing. My chambermaid tells me with a brave smile that her son and husband gave their lives for their country. And no matter what happens, or what shadows fall, there is never a doubt in the French or American heart that the enemy will be laid low and the allies will win.

The churches of France are filled as never before, and in front of every statue and picture of Joan of Arc always one sees reverent groups.

Obscured the sun, the world is dark,
Maid of Orleans, Joan of Arc,
Speak through the dark,
Let every heart in France be stirred
By such an all-compelling word
As thou once heard.
Say to each soul, "Lo! I am near;
My voice still speaks in accents clear.
Be still and hear.
The France I saved cannot be lost;
Though tempest-torn and terror-tossed,
Count not the cost.
Give, as the maid of Dormery
Gave all—gave life itself to see
Her country free.
Back of great France my spirit towers;
To aid her through the darkest hours
With God's own powers.
Maid of Orleans, Joan of Arc,
Shine through the night, speak through the dark
The while we hark.

Transportation Corps

By C. H. McGRATH,

Field Clerk, Department of the Northeast.

To give satisfaction is our aim;
Rather than gain place in the Hall of Fame,
And so we never brag or shout,
Nor tell the amount of work we turn out.
"So you want transportation to destination.
Pray show us your orders for change of station;
Or, you know you are on an officer's status; hadn't you
Rather travel on a mileage basis? No?
Then just come in a little later in the day
And we'll have you fixed up all O. K."
This is the story all day long
In the Transportation Division, seven men strong.
Over and over this story is told,
Never is young, yet never grows old.

DEMOCRACY FOR WOMEN AS WELL AS MEN

By Mrs. Mary A. Mahan

Attorney at Law.

EACH morning when our flag is raised with its service pennant I pray with Lincoln that the blood of our men will not be shed in vain, and with Wilson that peace will not be declared until the world is safe for democracy. That democracy must be a true democracy—a democracy that includes women equally with men.

The democratic idea that government is based on the consent of the governed had a slow conception, its birth was accomplished by most sanguinary warfare and it has had a constant struggle for its existence.

While government was concerned only with the making of war and the drafting of men for carrying on the wars it was not such an anomaly to call a government a democracy which allowed only the fighting sex the right to express its will, but now that all governments deal not only with the making of war but with every detail of life for women as well as men, and it may be said more particularly women, it has become an anomaly to call democratic a form of government which permits men to express their will and absolutely refuses to permit women to do so.

Even when the only business of government was the making of war every one of its acts affected women to the same degree that it affected men, but the effect on women's lives was not so immediately apparent as on men's, and the world could not see this truth. But today when the needs of the world demand the work of women in factories, shops and offices, and the State for its own preservation, as it says, must pass laws to protect women from the rapacity of man, no one can deny that government directly affects women.

Therefore, a true democracy—government by consent of the governed—cannot be deemed to exist until men and women are both given full opportunity to express their will as to the laws under which they shall live, and this expression can be made effective only through the ballot. Men fought for this right; women are pleading for it.

Americans, Wake Up!

By J. J. Mundy

IN the third loan asked by Uncle Sam he has given the people of the United States a big job, but it is not so big that the people of the country are going to fail to meet the requirements.

Americans are not built along such lines.

It is our duty to assist in winning this war.

Everybody must expect to do something.

You have no right to think that because you are beyond the draft age or because your forefathers have fought in previous struggles your family has done all which should be expected of it.

If you do, you're as bad as the man who tries to evade army service—the slacker.

The slacker feels that he wants to save his life, which is more precious to him than all the money you may possess, while all you have at stake, in your attempt to avoid your duty in the way of taking Liberty bonds, is some little self-denial, some sacrifices, or perhaps the thought that by keeping your money you may be able to make investments which will pay you a larger rate of interest than is paid by the Government.

How can you, with such a feeling in your heart, face your fellowmen?

How can you look into the eyes of a father or mother who has given up a loved one to join those "Over There"?

Can you avoid the conviction, prompted by your inner self, that you are a dishonor to those who gave you life, to your country, to the ancestors who fought that you might have such a glorious country in which to live?

Wake up!

Rouse yourself to a full spirit of patriotism!

Give a chance for that American blood in your veins to circulate under additional pressure afforded by a heart which pulsates with true-blue patriotism.

Let your Americanism speak!

Be true, be honorable; help your country with every dollar which you can spare.

A LETTER ON JEALOUS WOMEN BOSSES

By Winifred Black

DEAR Winifred Black:

Your recent article, "Other Women Are So Jealous," interested me to such an extent that I thought I would write you a few of my own thoughts and experiences wherein I know that women, or rather girls—as I am only twenty myself, and have had more experience with girls of my own age than women—are jealous and, to be real frank, as catty as can be to each other. I am speaking of the majority, and not of the minority.

When I first started out to look for a position I was not quite sixteen—of course I was far from knowing anything about business or the world then. I could sit and look at a pretty girl for hours, wishing in my heart for her happiness.

But when, after securing a position, the head stenographer seemed to delight in making it as bitter for me as she possibly could—taking every little mistake to the manager, telling him it was only waste of time to try to break me in—I heard all of this and developed such a hatred for that girl—or woman, as she was old enough to be my grandmother—that I became frightened of myself.

Real Experience

The manager, who was a kind-hearted person, called me into his office one night at closing time and told me he was afraid I was a little too young to handle the work, which was quite heavy. Of course, I knew who caused this—but felt too hurt to argue with him, afraid of bursting into tears and making a scene. I grabbed my hat and went out—walking in front of cars and automobiles, not caring what happened—as this was my first disappointment, and being young I thought it could not have been worse.

This was when I first lost faith in women, and that was four years ago. I have had no girl chum since then, but am more happy by myself than with girls of this type. Of course, it is terribly lonesome, but that's to be expected.

Why on earth does a woman want to see a little, simple-minded girl, trying to make her living, get fired? I was never bold, being more shy than anything else—trying to do my best.

I know from experience that fellows don't like that. When a new office boy starts on his career the older men all seem to dote on him. They might quiz him, but never would they intentionally show his little mistakes to the boss to get him ousted. Those little tricks seem to belong to the feminine sex.

Did you ever go into a ladies' room in one of the big office buildings downtown, around noontime or so? You will most always find a bunch of girls clustered together picking on some poor co-worker. What do you call all this? I call it jealousy! It is always a good-looking girl they are talking about—you never see them take an insignificant person to pick on.

E. E.

Here's the Reply

Why, you poor little lonesome thing! No wonder you have the heartache! Who wouldn't, carrying a disappointment around in your heart like that for years!

Now, what if that head stenographer really thought that you weren't worth breaking in? Wasn't it her duty to tell the manager so? That's part of what he paid her salary for. Didn't you know that? Probably she did misjudge you, and was too hasty and too exacting—but it was part of your business to make her see that. Don't you realize that this is true? She didn't have any grudge against you; she was probably tired and overworked herself, and didn't want to bother—and, anyhow, the idea of letting one woman stand between you and sunshine all this while!

You've lived without that situation, haven't you, ever since then? So it wasn't such a life-and-death matter, after all, was it?

Don't let your heart ache any more, Little Lonesome. Hold up your head, do your work well, stop thinking about yourself, and the first thing you know you'll have so many nice girl friends that you won't know what to do with them all.
